

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

ALL THE NEWS THAT'S FIT TO PRINT.

VOL. XXXVI

CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1911.

8 Pages

No. 11

BRECKENRIDGE GIRL A WHITE SLAVE

Miss Pearl Snyder, of Harned, says she was sent to Tampa by Edna Shelley, ticket seller, of Casino Show.

LEFT HOME AUGUST 27.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 18.—Telegraph advises early this morning that the mayor and chief of police of Tampa had demanded the immediate arrest of Edna Shelley, of 328 West Jefferson street, cashier at a motion picture theater, followed hard upon the heels of the news that the girl who alleges that she had been held in white slavery in the Florida town, had been identified as Miss Pearl Snyder, of Harned, Breckenridge county, Ky. The Tampa officials called upon United States District Attorney Cheney, of Orlando, Fla., to take steps to have the Louisville woman taken into custody. The latter is charged by Miss Snyder with having furnished her transportation to Tampa and sent her to a house of ill fame under false pretenses.

The girl, who alleges that she was the victim of white slavers, was released from a resort at Tampa, kept by a woman named Marla Lawrence, four days ago, following an appeal to the police. She was ill when taken from the place and was removed to a hospital, where she gave her name as Mary Richardson and her home as Harned, Ky.

Family Reached Over 'Phone.

The girl's identity was finally established last night. Her sister and J. A. Gray, a friend of the family, were reached by long-distance telephone, and upon being told of the contents of a news dispatch from Tampa, said they had no doubt that the girl at Tampa was Pearl Snyder.

Miss Snyder's sister and Mr. Gray, when informed by telephone as to the circumstances of the case, made the following statement:

"Pearl left home August 27, intending to first visit the Hardinsburg fair and then to go to Louisville in search of employment. She visited the fair and was in the company of neighbors during the day. That was the last seen or heard of her by any of her friends. Her brother and sister, with whom she lived, did not know how much money she had. After she left we heard nothing from her. The inquiries made by Louisville reporters, of which we were told tonight by neighbors, gave us our first intimation that she might be the girl in Tampa. The substance of the dispatches from Tampa leads us to believe that the story is true. The family will take care of her and will ask that the guilty parties be prosecuted."

Refuses Interviewers.

The home of Miss Edna Shelley, who was accused by the Snyder girl of furnishing her transportation and directing her to the resort of the Lawrence woman in Tampa, was closed to newsmen yesterday. The report given at the home of Miss Shelley Saturday night that the young woman had left the city was contradicted by several acquaintances of Miss Shelley. They asserted that she is still at home, and though she feels keenly the notoriety the case has given her, has no intention of leaving town.

Thus far there has been no evidence of activity by the local secret service men in the case. District Attorney, George DuRelle, declared yesterday afternoon that he had received no official notification of the arrests in Tampa nor of the connection with the case of the Louisville woman.

The penalty in cases of conviction for white-slave dealing is not less than five years in a Federal prison. This applies to all agents in the interstate transportation of girls or women to engage in immoral pursuits.

In speaking over the phone to The Breckenridge News yesterday morning, Oscar Snyder said that he had telegraphed to Pearl Snyder at Tampa, Fla., to see if the woman was his sister. He thinks she is, but as yet, has received no word from her. Mr. Snyder said he had not heard from her since she left for Louisville. Her parents are dead and she lived with him. She has two sisters, Bessie and Ruth, the first being married.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour."

Breckenridge County People At State Fair Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Rhodes, Axel; Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Haddock, Miss Cleo Hatfield, Mrs. G. H. Claycomb and Horace Claycomb, Webster; J. T. Jones, Vanzant; Mr. and Mrs. John Ross, Miss Hazel Holder, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. D. Babbage, Mrs. Eugene Kingsbury, Chas. Smart and daughter, Miss Jennie, Cloverport; Thos. Donoghue, Thos. H. Withers, Finley Miller, Sherman Ball, Dr. J. E. Royalty, H. H. Lewis, T. C. Lewis, Hardinsburg; Roscoe Davis, wife and daughter, Miss Lottie, Locus Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Milt Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Payne, Harned; W. E. Manning and wife, Mooneyville; Bill Gilbert, Stephensport; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Eskridge, Sample; Lud Moorman and Estill Moorman, Vanzant; J. H. Miles, S. M. Haynes, F. J. Sipes, Thos. H. Blythe, Dick Hardaway, Irvington; A. B. Oliver, Custer; H. G. Vessels, Frymire; J. M. Fisher, Falls of Rough; S. W. Davis and wife, Harned; Eli Storms, McDonalds; J. W. Nicholas, Garfield; Clint Davis, Mabel Haskins, Glen Dean; Mrs. J. M. Cooper and daughter, Alliene, Vanzant; Mrs. Thos. Davis and Lillian Kincheloe, Basin Springs; R. T. French and wife, Geo. Richardson and wife, Richard French, Guston; Mr. and Mrs. Jake Shacklett, Ekron; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Smith, Fordsville; Mr. and Mrs. Eli Morley, D. M. Duncan and wife and children, Brandenburg; W. H. Eskridge, Falls of Rough, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kelly, Hawesville, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Pate, Hopkinsville; Miss Jennie Green, Falls of Rough; William Winchell and daughter, Mary, Toblinsport, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Holloman Behen, Marion Behen, Sr., Miss Helen Kingsbury, Cloverport; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Beard, Hardinsburg; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Robertson, Glen Dean

Likes Kentucky Better

Dear Mr. Babbage: I am enclosing $1 for renewal. Cannot do without the dear old friend, The News. Of all the papers that come to my home, The News gets first attention. I love Pennsylvania but Kentucky, in old Breckenridge county, better. Yours truly, C. B. Bates, Scottdale, Pa.

CUPID'S TRUMP

Popular Young Couple Marry
In Jeffersonville Saturday Night.

The marriage of Miss Audrey Virginia Perkins and Mr. Robert Wilson took place Saturday night in Jeffersonville, Ind. The ceremony was said at 9:30 o'clock, Mr. Keaglin officiating. Miss Alma Perkins, a sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Vachael Hinton accompanied them to Jeffersonville.

Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Perkins. She was a member of the 1911 graduating class of C. H. S.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wilson.

Money For Depositors.

Hartford, Ky., Sept. 15.—Heavrin & Woodward, attorneys representing J. W. McCarty, assignee of the Fordville, Ky., banking company, state that a dividend of forty or fifty per cent. will be paid the depositors of that institution within the next few days. This is more than many of the depositors had expected.

Full Fledged Lawyer.

A. W. Babbage, who has been doing stenographic work for the past year in the law office of D. B. Logan, passed a very successful bar examination at Barboursville last week and now has a license to hang out his shingle as a practicing attorney. Mr. Babbage will go to George Washington University at Washington City, the coming year and get a law degree there. Mr. Babbage has made many friends during his stay in Pineville who wish him the best of success in his school year and hope he will return here to practice law.—Pineville Sun.

Mr. Babbage arrived Friday night to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Babbage. He will leave Friday for Washington, D. C.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour."

DAVIS' CONDITION NO WORSE

Man Shot By H. L. Stader In Louisville Has Chance To Live--Mr. Stader Returned
Home --Cause Of Shooting
Not Told

EXAMINING TRIAL TOMORROW

The condition of Dr. John R. Davis, of Vine Grove, who was shot by H. L. Stader in Louisville, shows no change for the worse. The shooting occurred in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Murl, Wednesday morning about 2:30 a. m. A charge of shooting and wounding was placed against Stader and he was placed under a $1,500 bond furnished by C. W. Moorman of this city. He will appear at his examining trial in the Police Court in Louisville tomorrow.

When seen by a representative of The Breckenridge News Saturday, Mr. Stader said he could not discuss the trouble, the cause of the shooting or anything in regard to it. He had been advised by his lawyer, Henry Sanders, not to say a word about the affair.

Mr. Stader returned home Thursday night from Louisville. He has opened his home but takes his meals at Kingsbury's.

Mr. Stader is in Louisville at the home of his sister, Mrs. Muir. Her mother, Mrs. Anna Ryan, is with her.

She went to Louisville about two weeks ago and Mr. Stader went last Tuesday evening. Mrs. Ryan was called to Louisville Wednesday morning.

Not So Gay In Newport

Dear Mr. Babbage: Enclose and $1 for renewal. Cannot do without the dear old friend, The News. Of all the papers that come to my home, The News gets first attention. I love Pennsylvania but Kentucky, in old Breckenridge county, better. Yours truly, C. B. Bates, Scottdale, Pa.

This has been a good season in Newport, though the society people do not entertain so lavishly as they did a few years ago.

We will make a great effort to elect a Democratic Governor in Rhode Island this year. We have not made the nominations yet, but Lewis A. Waterman, once a news-boy in Providence, will be the nominee, and we have a good chance to elect him with a chance to elect a legislature with him and if we do, some of the King George Charter Laws will be repealed. I am watching the fight in Kentucky and I am sure you will win with the old "War Horse" McCrea.

I remember hearing him speak at Hardinsburg nearly 25 years ago, also Simon B. Buckner and remember hearing the boys cry harsh for Buckner. Betsy, the baby and I rode a mile from Webster to Hollinsburg that morning with my father, T. B. Henderson. We started bright and early and got there before the crowd arrived, and I met the delegation from the upper end of the county near where the railroad station is now. They were headed by the Brandenburg band and they carried a flag made, I believe by Miss Adams and Beatty Drury of Bewleyville. I love to think of the old days in dear old Kentucky; and I always glad to read the news and find out what you all are doing.—Wathen B. Henderson, Newport, R. I.

The Passing Of Summer

Another summer has passed. The delicate tints of autumn are visible on field and forest. All nature seems so still, as if resting after its two seasons of budding and blooming. At this season the hush of Nature falls heavily on the heart of those who can read her signs aright, and are in sympathy with her varying moods. In the song of every bird there seems a saddened note; in every passing breeze a whispering part; in every waterfall a wail—in the silence tears. Even the birds seem tired of the long, gay season, and are resting in some sylvan retreat. The sun shines but dimly; the few remaining flowers droop languidly in his weakened rays. The zephyrs sigh in plaintive tones, as if chanting a dirge to fading beauty. The hoarse voice of November will soon drive the birds to warmer climes, and scatter leaves over our summer's dead; then the winter's winding sheet will fall over all.

I've watched the shadows creep along until the close of day, And listened to the whispering zephyrs 'mong the swaying branches play, I've watched the mist upon the plains fast flee, before the noonday's sun, And watched the vine climb high up on the arch to kiss the sun.

The shadows speak of fleeting years, And the changes they may bring, The zephyrs whisper to my ear a song I shall forever sing.

The mist is vanished dreams which sped before the noon of life.

The vine speaks to my aching heart,

Look up higher for the brighter light.

Mrs. A. Moseley.

Mrs. Mary Bailey, of Little Rock, Ark., is here visiting relatives.

G. W. Winchell and daughter, Veva, attended the Fair and visited relatives last week in Louisville.

E. A. Bergen, of Louisville, was here last Tuesday representing Bryant & Stratton business college.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dickey, of East St. Louis, are here visiting her aunt, Mrs. Waldo Simons.

Prof. S. B. Groom, of Princeton, Ky., is here visiting friends.

Forrest Polk has returned to school at Lafayette.

TOBINSORT

Mrs. Mary Bailey, of Little Rock, Ark., is here visiting relatives.

G. W. Winchell and daughter, Veva, attended the Fair and visited relatives last week in Louisville.

E. A. Bergen, of Louisville, was here last Tuesday representing Bryant & Stratton business college.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dickey, of East St. Louis, are here visiting her aunt, Mrs. Waldo Simons.

Prof. S. B. Groom, of Princeton, Ky., is here visiting friends.

Forrest Polk has returned to school at Lafayette.

THE OLDEST WOMAN OF PERRY COUNTY

Mother of the Lucky Thirteen; has Thirty-three Grand-children; Fifty Great Grand-children.

Three months from to-day, if all is well, ninety candles can be lighted on a cake for Mrs. Nancy Leaf, for the twentieth of December she will have reached the ninetieth anniversary of her birthday.

She is an interesting woman and the oldest one living in the Tobinsort community. She is the mother of fourteen children, thirteen of whom are living. John, the one who is dead, was killed by a bayonet thrust during the latter part of the Civil War.

Mrs. Leaf is the daughter of Henry and Mary Weatherholt. She first saw the light at what was known as "The Old Chimney Place," near the spot where the oil well was drilled on W. S. Leaf's place. When she was seventeen years of age she became the bride of Andrew Leaf, who died nineteen years ago.

During the early life of Mr. and Mrs. Leaf the country in what is now known as the Tobinsort bottoms was heavily wooded and some days the paths would be as dark as night. Only a few patches were cleared around the houses of the few settlers scattered here and there.

Mrs. Leaf says in those days that buggies had never been heard of and people had not even then begun to ride horseback. Everyone walked from one place to another, many even walking as far as Vincennes for a marriage license. The county seat of Perry county was then at Rome, Indiana.

When Mrs. Leaf was a girl the most popular amusement for young and old, was the old fashioned "square dance."

Church was also more popular then than now and the boys always took their best girls to meetin'.

The Leaf family have always been noted for their health and length of days—they must have been very obedient to their parents.

The children, grand-children and great grand-children of Andrew and Mary Leaf are given below: Sarah Shoemaker, children 2 grand-children 12, of Rome, Indiana; John Leaf, un married; Arad Leaf, children 2 grand-children 5, Tobinsort, Indiana; Mary A. Wheeler, children 5, grand-children 14, Monroe City, Ind.; Thos. H. Leaf, children 7, grand-children 8, Tobinsort, Ind.; Z. T. Leaf, children 3, New Albany, Ind.; Levi Leaf, children 7, grand-children 4, Arkansas City, Kan.; W. S. Leaf, children 6, grand-children 4, grand-children 1, Cannelton, Ind.; Anna Leaf, un married, Tobinsort, Ind.; Matilda Little, children 4, grand-children 4, Cannelton, Ind.; Anna Leaf, un married, Tobinsort, Ind.; F. M. Leaf, children 6, Moqua, Ill.; Millard F. Leaf, children 3, Derby, Ind.; F. M. Leaf, children 6, Moqua, Ill.; Eli M. Leaf, children 7, Genda Springs, Kan.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure
The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar
NO ALUM, NO LIME PHOSPHATE

Aged Couple Celebrate Birthday Anniversaries

Raymond, Sept. 18, (Special)—An enjoyable occasion was that of the birth day dinner Friday, September 15, of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hall, it being their birthday anniversaries. Notwithstanding the weather was unfavorable, between seventy five and eight persons partook of the sumptuous feast, which the relatives and many friends had prepared.

Mrs. Hall has been an invalid about four years, she having had a stroke of paralysis four years ago, leaving her left side helpless.

Mr. Hall has been a sufferer nearly a year. He is in bed most of the time. Friday was the sixty-eighth birthday of Mr. Hall and the sixty-sixth of Mrs. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall have been married forty-five years. To this union ten children were born: Mrs. Levi Pollock, Mrs. Hayden Bassett, Mrs. W. F. Chappell, Mrs. Frank Philpot, Mrs. Sam Johnson, Miss Blanche Hall, June, Floyd, Mack and John Hall, all living except Mack and John, who died after they were grown. They are the grandparents of sixteen living grand children.

Mr. Hall was an old soldier in the

Mr. Conrad Simons and daughter, Nona, and Mrs. Zella Ahi and daughter, Ethel, were in Louisville last week.

Miss Beatrice Payne is visiting relatives in Louisville.

Quite a number of teachers from here attended the Institute at Cannelton last week.

The base ball club gave a dance Saturday evening which was well attended and all had a fine time.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport BEST Flour.

PRESBYTERIAN REVIVAL

Members Of Lucile Memorial
Will Hold A Series Of Services Next Month

The Rev. Mr. Adair, pastor of the Lucile Memorial church, announced a series of meetings to begin at the Presbyterian church Sunday, October eighth.

A well-known pastor of Columbia, Ky., has been engaged to conduct the revival. The members are making preparations for the meeting and are anxious for all the churches to share the services with them.

death of Miss Mabel Moorman, at Yelvington

Mr. and Mrs. May, of Cloverport, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Miller last week.

Mrs. L. B. McCubbin and little daughter Ruth, are the guests of Mrs. M. E. McCubbin. They will soon return to California to their home.

MOUNT ETNA IN ERUPTION EVERY FOUR OR FIVE YEARS

Last Previous Serious Outbreak Was In January, 1907.

Newspaper Correspondent's Description of 1908 Eruption.

THE latest eruption of Mount Etna is considered the most grave in years. It has been estimated that Etna's periods of activity occur at intervals of four or five years, as a rule, and as the last serious eruption was in January, 1907, the volcano may be said to be maintaining its schedule. Although the disturbance of 1907 was pronounced, it was by no means as destructive as the great eruption of 1892. The most destructive previous outbreaks on record occurred in 1669, 1699, 1693, 1702, 1879, 1886 and 1892.

There was a mild outbreak in May, 1908, and for a time the inhabitants along the slopes and in nearby towns were thrown into excitement, but Etna subsided after covering the countryside with smoke and ashes and was not heard from again until March, 1910, when at the height of the tourist season in Sicily the crater opened. It is not the height so much as the tremendous extent of the mountain that has impressed tourists. Its base spreads out almost twenty-five miles, and from there to the summit it is almost a perfect cone. At certain seasons the sides are covered with snow halfway down. The crater is 10,000 feet above sea level, making Etna the loftiest volcano in Europe and the highest peak in Italy south of the Alps.

Eruption of 1907.

On Dec. 28, 1908, at the time of the Messina disaster, loud detonations were heard, and volumes of smoke rolled out of the crater. A panic arose among the people of Catania, the nearest town to the volcano, but Professor Ricco, director of the observatory, said that a great eruption was not expected. His views were confirmed by Frank Perret, assistant director of the royal observatory on Mount Vesuvius, who, after an inspection of Mount Etna on April 30, 1909, reported: "The earthquake at Messina has reduced its activity and for the time being has taken the energy necessary to create an eruption. Reports that Mount Etna was in eruption are untrue, as there has been only a slight emission of vapors from the crater."

It was on Jan. 9, 1907, that Mount Etna awoke after a period of inactivity since the eruption of 1899. Smoke, ashes and flame rose from its summit, which was covered with snow. On Jan. 16, 1907, the volcano, at the same time that the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, occurred, became more active. Professor Ricco said that the fire openings inside the crater, discovered in 1893, had increased in size, but that only smoke and the reflection of fire could be seen. Ashes were thrown out, and subterranean detonations were heard. On May 8 of the same year the eruption became more violent. The lava flow increased, and the smoke was so abundant that the whole atmosphere as far as Catania was thick with it. There were severe earth shocks, and Professor Ricco was apprehensive of a great eruption.

LOOK OUT FOR BAD $10 BILL.

Secret Service Head Says It's a Dangerous Counterfeit.

"This is a dangerous counterfeit and calculated to deceive," says acting Chief Moran of the secret service in a circular issued giving warning of a new counterfeit ten dollar national bank note. It is on the Anglo and London-Paris National bank of San Francisco and bears the portrait of William McKinley. It is of the series of 1902-03 and bears a check letter "B."

This counterfeit is regarded by the secret service men as the work of the person responsible for the counterfeit ten dollar Pasadena National bank note which made its appearance in September, 1910. It is printed from photo graph etched plates of good workmanship on two pieces of paper, between which silk threads have been distributed.

Digestion And Assimilation.

It is not the quantity of food taken but the amount digested and assimilated that gives strength and vitality to the system. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and enable them to perform their functions naturally. For sale by all dealers.

How It Got There.

A gamekeeper was going over his master's estate one morning, when he encountered a gentleman of the pouncing class. The gamekeeper noticed that the other's hat was bulging in a curious manner. After subjecting the hat to an examination he found a fine young pheasant.

"How did this get here?" the gamekeeper asked, glaring at the culprit.

"Blowed if I know," growled the poacher, gazing at the pheasant with an apparent look of great perplexity. "The blooming thing must have crawled up my trousers leg" — London Tit Bits.

$3.50 Louisville Evening Post and Breckenridge News one year $3.50

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour."

NIKOLA TESLA HAS A NEW INVENTION.

Electrical Journal Says He Can Easily Transmit Great Energy.

A new development of a mechanical principle upon which Nikola Tesla is said to have been laboring for some years is described in the Electrical Review. This latest development in mechanics for which so much is claimed by friends of the inventor is based on the adhesion and viscosity of liquids and gases and is said to afford a novel means of generating and transmitting mechanical power.

How Etna Spouts Fire.

Describing the appearance of Etna in the eruption of 1908, a correspondent from Taormina wrote: "Nothing could have looked more peaceful than Etna on the afternoon of my arrival here. The sun went down behind it out of a clear sky. Its outlines becoming blacker and more obscure until finally swallowed up in darkness. From outward signs it was the same sleeping beauty that it had been since the last eruption in 1890. In the morning — April 29 — there was a change. The peak was enveloped in vapor, which it took only a few seconds to observe was smoke, not cloud, but even then I did not realize that there was anything unusual until I noticed the excitement of the Italians.

"Smoke was coming from the crater at the summit, but by far the larger part from the east side of the mountain, a considerable way down, while now and then would come a rumble, sounding like canon far away. Later in the forenoon the vapors from the topmost cone ceased, and the smoke swirled out black and menacing from lower down, taking the shape of a funnel and rolling seaward on the wings of a westerly wind.

Novel Sight.

"The sight was as novel to natives as to visitors and perhaps more full of meaning. All day long they kept stealing away from their work and running to the houses or other vantage points to watch the changing aspects on the mountain, but they could not tell by day whether the volcano was in eruption.

"Wait until night," they said. "Then if lava is flowing out it will show red through the darkness."

"So interest increased toward dusk, and as the shadows thickened word went around the town: 'L'Etna fuma! L'Etna fuma!' True it was. The giant fountain, after a ten years' truce with the inhabitants of its fertile and expansive slopes, was again belching forth lava from the earth's inwards, though to what extent or with what disaster one could only conjecture.

"From Taormina it appeared as would a huge bonfire on a hill perhaps a mile away, which glowed red and yellow and now and then flared up as if some one had thrown on fresh brush. But when one considered that the burning patch in the darkness was not one but almost twenty miles away he realized that what he saw was a rearing furnace and that what to his eye seemed gentle flickers were, in truth, huge masses of molten lava spouting many feet in the air, the result of tremendous convulsions in the depths below."

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

Subscribe Now

STABS A MOUNTAIN LION.

Texas Farmer Slew a Beast That Had Killed His Child.

Maddened by the sight of a mountain lion standing over the dead body of his three-year-old son, Juan Morales, a farmer living seven miles from Brownsville, Tex., killed the beast with a knife thrust in the heart after a fifteen minute struggle, in which he sustained injuries which will cost an arm. Morales had gone to a neighbor's on an errand and left his three children, aged three, seven and ten years, at home. His wife died some months ago. He was returning and heard the screams of his children. Rushing into the house, he saw a mountain lion, which weighed over 400 pounds, crouched over the lifeless and motionless body of his little son.

The beast sprang at Morales, and the desperate fight began. Morales, who is forty-two years old and an athlete, tried for a struggle hold on the animal, which fought with its paws and was fast pulling the flesh from the right arm and shoulder of Morales when he managed to get out his knife and made several cuts at the mountain lion, which only made it more ferocious.

Morales was almost exhausted when he succeeded in driving the big blade of the knife into the heart of the animal and staggered from its grasp as it fell dead at his feet. Morales fainted, and his two little girls revived him with cold water and then helped him to bandage the wounds.

It was a long journey to town for medical aid, and, without a conveyance handy, Morales determined to make the trip on foot with his two surviving children. They had almost completed the journey when a man in a wagon picked them up and carried them to Brownsville.

Don't think that piles can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment. 50 cents at any drug store.

His First Day at School. I know a little boy who starts Upon a journey far today. And, oh, the love of anxious hearts That follows him along the way!

A traveler to wondrous lands, He turns and smiles and waves again To one with wistful eyes who stands Already lonely at the pane.

He knows the road is rough and long For baby feet so soft and small; He knows how travelers brave and strong 'Neath stress and storm and burden fall.

But naught of woes his wanderer knows Nor reckons of the strife in store. Hurried, without a care, he goes, Like the gay venturers of yore.

Along that road are love and fame And good for all, yet soon there be Who find at last but grief or shame, Who end in pain and poverty.

Ah, mother of that little boy Who fares forth alone today, Iod grant your prayer that peace and joy Attend his footstep all the way!

Leonard H. Robbins in Newark Evening News.

$3.50 Louisville Evening Post and Breckenridge News one year $3.50

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla. — "I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."

—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass. — "I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I have saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."

—Mrs. MARI JANETTE BATES, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, "hat bearing-down" feeling, and nervous prostration.

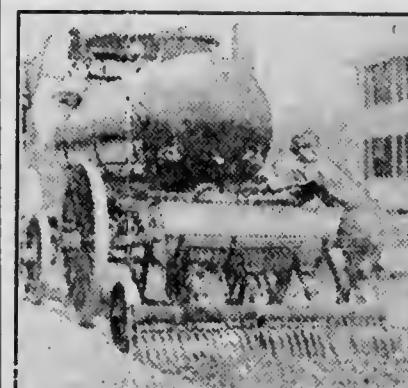

ROAD BUILDING EXPERIMENTS

Results of Tests Made Near Harrisburg, Pa., of New Methods.

Important changes in the matter of constructing state highways are likely to be made as a result of experiments being conducted by the Pennsylvania state highway department. These were begun two years ago, when it became apparent that under the stress of increasing automobile traffic the ordinary standard macadam roads could not be kept in first class condition without expensive repairs.

The various experiments have been made in the vicinity of Harrisburg, in order to be frequently inspected. The first was a piece of road built on what is called the penetration system in 1908. Upon the usual foundation was placed a layer of crushed stone, half the thickness of that ordinarily used in macadam construction, and into the interstices was poured an asphalt oil containing about 80 per cent of asphalt. The surface of the road was then covered with dry stone screenings and macadam.

Two pieces of road closely resembling the ordinary sheet asphalt paving

SPRINKLING ASPHALTIC OIL.

ment, which were built last year, show practically no evidence of wear. Telford blocks, laid by hand, were used as a foundation, and on top of this was placed a mixture of crushed stone and asphalt, mixed hot and rolled. A surface of fine stone screenings and asphalt was placed over this.

Another experimental road now being constructed has a telford base, upon which is placed a layer of crushed stone and asphalt mixed with the stone cold and the asphalt hot. The surface is sprinkled with hot asphalt oil and covered with a thin coating of coarse stone screenings.

These various methods exceed the cost of ordinary macadam by at least 25 per cent, but this extra cost is supposed to be more than compensated by the reduced cost of upkeep.

The department is also experimenting with a dust layer for ordinary macadam roads known as glutin. It is a byproduct of wood pulp making. The liquid has the consistency and appearance of tar. It is soluble in water, and one of its peculiarities is that each succeeding rainfall renews the bonding or cementing qualities of the compound. A piece of road dressed with it early this season is being carefully watched by the department.

These various methods exceed the cost of ordinary macadam by at least 25 per cent, but this extra cost is supposed to be more than compensated by the reduced cost of upkeep.

The department is also experimenting with a dust layer for ordinary macadam roads known as glutin. It is a byproduct of wood pulp making. The liquid has the consistency and appearance of tar. It is soluble in water, and one of its peculiarities is that each successive rainfall renews the bonding or cementing qualities of the compound.

A piece of road dressed with it early this season is being carefully watched by the department.

Diarrhoea is always more or less prevalent during September. Be prepared for it. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is prompt and effective. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by all dealers.

—Leonard H. Robbins in Newark Evening News.

We Do Neat Job Work

BOARS AND BUCKS

15 Poland China Boats, $12.00 each; 5 Hampshire Bucks $12.00 each; also Polled Durhams and Gilts, all ages.

W. R. MOORMAN & SON, :: Glen Dean, Ky.

Building Material

Let us have a chance to figure with you. It will cost you only 2c to do this and we will get your order or make the firm who does get it give you all its profit.

West Point Brick & Lumber Co.

West Point, Kentucky

Notice to Taxpayers

If you want to save the penalty and cost, please meet me or one of my deputies at the following places on said dates:

VanZant, September 20
Rockvale, " 21
Glen Dean " 22
McDaniels " 23

The State has forced me to settle and I will have to force you. The 6 per cent penalty goes on December 1, 1911!

Yours respectfully,

Dennie Sheeran

PICK OUT THE MAN!

He carries himself with an air of confidence. He looks his fellow man straight in the face. He has no circles under his eyes from loss of sleep. He is not tempted to extravagance. He talles with this description because he is the man with a bank account, and no matter how small it is, it is something for the rainy day. More than likely he banked with The Farmers Bank, Hardinsburg, Ky., because it is a strong reliable bank and offers superior advantages and facilities.

MATTHIAS MILLER, President

J. D. SHAW, Cashier

W. K. BARNES, Vice President

Z. C. HENDRICK, Asst Cashier

DIRECTORS

Allen R. Kincheloe, J. W. Guthrie, J. W. Teaff

Alvin N. Skillman, Huston Alexander, A. C. Glasscock, Dr. Wm. L. Milner

THE FARMERS BANK, :: Hardinsburg, Ky.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGN OFFER

The Breckenridge News Louisville Evening Post 75c

From now until after the November Election.

Send Subscription to

The Breckenridge News, :: Cloverport, Ky.

SUBSCRIBE NOW

and keep in touch with the Political Situation

Knives, Hatch

THE RACE FOR DREADNOUGHTS

How Experts Appraise Navies of Great Nations.

GREAT BRITAIN IS STILL FIRST.

Two American Warships, Utah and Florida, Are Largest in Service of Leading Powers, While the New York Will Excel Any Being Built.

Since the new American Dreadnought Utah arrived in port at New York to join her sister ship, the Florida, now nearing completion at the Brooklyn navy yard, naval men have been discussing with renewed interest the relative position of American sea fighters as compared with the navies of the other nations. While experts concede that Great Britain has the largest aggregate of warships, with either Germany or the United States second, it is asserted that the two new Dreadnoughts of the United States outrank in size and strength anything afloat.

The British battleships Lion and Orion will excel the two newest American ships, but neither of these is as yet in service. Germany also has a number of powerful Dreadnoughts in course of construction, but the largest German ship in commission is of less tonnage and efficiency than the Utah and Florida, which have displacements of 22,000 tons each as compared with the original Dreadnought of 18,000 tons. They take the lead over the Delaware and North Dakota, 20,000 tons each, which heretofore were the prize ships in the American navy. Besides leading the ships of all the great powers in size, they also bring Germany and the United States nearer together in the race for second place among naval powers.

Among the experts the original Dreadnought has become the accepted unit of sea fighting efficiency. Counting it as a unit of 100, the American battleship Delaware and her sister ship, North Dakota, have an efficiency ratio of 110 each, while the Florida and Utah have a ratio of 125 each. These ratios for American Dreadnought ships aggregate 670 as against an aggregate of about 700 for Germany. So Germany and the United States are separated by only a few points for position of second when the Dreadnought unit of fighting strength is the basis. On ships below the Dreadnought unit the scales are turned in favor of the United States.

The super-Dreadnought New York, whose keel was laid recently, will outrank in tonnage anything thus far built or under way in England and Germany. Her tonnage will be 27,000. The largest British ships under construction are those of the King George class, 25,000 tons, and the largest of the new German ships building are of 23,000 tons. The British designers, however, are planning the Queen Mary, 29,000 tons. The New York represents the largest warships being built, while the Utah and Florida are the largest in the service of any of the great nations.

HUGE BUTTERFLY.

Specimen Found in Brazil Is as Big as a Sparrow Hawk.

W. M. Mann and Frederick Baker, members of the Stanford Brazilian expedition who remained behind, have sent news from Madeira, on the Amazon river, of the discovery of hitherto unknown species of the morpho, a huge butterfly. The new species is as large as a sparrow hawk and caused considerable fright to the members by flying toward them in an attitude of attack. When within a few feet of its enemy it strikes and soars to a height of twenty or thirty feet, returning to repeat the attack. Several large specimens of the insect have been preserved and will be further investigated upon the party's return to the campus.

The remaining members will travel up the Amazon for a distance of 500 miles and will gather specimens of the animals and plants all along the route. The river, after a hundred miles or so from the mouth, is so thickly infested with crocodiles and large gar that bathing in the river is absolutely impossible with any degree of safety. The crocodiles are of the larger species of the floating variety and are dangerous. Fresh water fish, such as carp and catfish, which in this country do not exceed in size, on the Amazon attain the weight of from 300 to 500 pounds under the equatorial sun.

The struggle for existence of vegetation is indescribable, and the bank along the river is one solid mass of tangled vines, palms, mosses and orchids. It is impossible to set foot on the ground for distance of a mile from the banks. Monkeys, snakes and parrots are the only animals which can exist in the dense clusters.

Family Record on Turtle's Back. George L. Stillman, a business man of Westerly, R. I., was strolling about his farm, about a mile from the village, when he came across a big turtle which was sunning itself on the banks of a pond. He secured it and found engraved on its shell the initials of his grandfather, Adam Stillman, engraved in 1805. Further examination disclosed the name of another Adam Stillman, the great-grandfather, engraved in 1708, and the name of Paul Mason, carved in 1708.

BAD ROADS AND FARM DERSERS.

The movement of so many thousands of young people from the farm to the city is largely caused by bad roads, which isolate their homes and render the world around them inaccessible. The addition to the urban population lessens the producing force of the farm and at the same time creates a greater demand for farm products. This means a higher cost of living, and an undesirable situation results.

WORK OF THE GOVERNMENT IN PRESERVING ROADS.

Experiments in Dust Preventives and Binders Being Made.

During the past year the work of the office of public roads of the department of agriculture relative to the investigation of the problems of dust prevention and road preservation has advanced rapidly. Routine tests or analyses of bituminous road materials made in the laboratories during the past year were more than double the number made during the preceding year.

A number of these examinations were made in conjunction with the experimental field work of the office. It is expected that these examinations will be of great service in determining the value of certain classes of binders, as the experimental work is carefully inspected from time to time, and the results are made a matter of record.

Through its laboratory work the office has been able to offer valuable advice in regard to specifications for bituminous road binders and in many instances to frame such specifications upon request of various public service bodies. A number of the state highway commissions have profited by this opportunity.

Many worthless road preparations have been and are at present being manufactured and sold to the public through ignorance on the part of both producer and consumer with regard to the requisite characteristics of such materials to meet local conditions. These materials are sold under trade names and as a rule carry no valid warranty of quality.

Specifications for such materials are therefore much needed for the protection of the public, and this phase of the work will be given continued attention by the office. Special investigations of bituminous road materials carried on by the laboratory have covered improvements in the methods of distillation, the effect of various methods of distillation upon the physical and chemical properties of tars and the development of a test for determining the binding value of bitumens.

OILING ROADS CHEAP.

How Evanston (Ill.) Highways Are Kept Dustless.

A noiseless, asphalt-like road surface, dustless—which asphalt is not—and dustless, new every year and at a cost no greater than for the sprucing of ordinary roads or pavements. It is made possible by the use of what is left of petroleum after kerosene, gasoline and paraffin have been removed—that is, if the road upon which it is used is macadam. Francis Buzzell in the Popular Mechanics Magazine tells how this has been demonstrated on the roads of Evanston, a wealthy suburb of Chicago.

He says that the city buys the road oil at 3 cents a gallon. It is delivered in tank cars of the standard type, which cars are run on to a siding and held until the oil is used up on the streets. The average application is one-quarter gallon to a square yard.

The force required for the work does not exceed eight men. One of this number is foreman, paid a wage of $3 per day, and the other seven, stationed at the tank car to aid in pumping the oil out when this is necessary, receive $2 per day.

Road Near Topeka.

For many miles out of Topeka, Kan., to the west there is an almost ideal dirt road that has been made and kept in condition by use of the road drag.

When the rain or snow falls this road becomes a little muddy on top, but the mud is never deep, and there are no ruts or "chuck holes." It is so graded that the drainage is perfect and it dries off almost immediately.

This splendid road has taken the place of one that was almost impassable in bad weather and very rough in good. It cost the labor and expense of one dragging per month and was made possible by the activity of one man who interested his neighbors. Now the neighbors would not willingly do without it. Such roads are possible in most neighborhoods in Kansas.

SPLIT LOG DRAG.

A split log drag will make the road impervious to water provided it is used in wet weather and is not too sharp.

BETTER ROADS SHORTEN DISTANCES.

"I wish my farm was only half the distance from town that it is," said a farmer to a prominent business man after he had hauled a load of corn over muddy roads for eight miles. "Well, we can take your farm and move it four miles closer to town," replied the business man. The farmer looked incredulous. "How?" he asked. "By building good roads," replied the merchant.

USUAL ROUTES AND ROADS.

Postal Department Has Become Strong Agency of Highway Improvement. The marvelous development of the rural mail service shows how greatly the people prize this daily blessing and indicates that they would be extremely reluctant to give it up or be deprived of it for any cause. This being so, the postal department has in its power to become a stronger agency for highway improvement.

There are certainly few communities that would give up their mail service rather than improve their roads, and if the department should see fit to put it up to the people where the roads are bad, give them the choice of making better roads or doing without mail, it seems that they would, in common parlance, "get busy." The department has sent out a number of bulletins containing a warning, and these are said to have been partially effective. Part of the last bulletin issued to postmasters contained this:

"You are directed to inform yourself with reference to the condition of roads and bridges on the rural routes out of your office, and if you find that they require improvements you should present the matter in the strongest and most positive way to the patrons and road officials, informing them that improvements must be made as soon as practicable. If, after a reasonable time has elapsed, the improvements have not been made or started, you will report the fact to this office in order that action may be taken looking to the discontinuance of the service."

"The department is not immediately concerned in elaborate road improvements, but in the interest of the best service to the largest number of patrons it must insist upon roads being kept in good repair, the lack of which is usually due to improper drainage and unsuitable grading and surface work, which can be easily and cheaply accomplished by timely work and the regular use of the split log drag or similar device."

"I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success," writes Mrs. M. I. Basford, Poolesville, Md. For sale by all dealers.

PETITION FOR STOCK LAW.

Wm. Hall & Others, Breckenridge County Court

It appearing to the Court, after having been sufficiently advised, that Wm. Hall and others on petition for a stock law, being in number more than twenty, having signed the petition, and being each and all over the age of 21 years, and legal and qualified voters in Magisterial District No. 4, of Breckenridge County, Ky., known as Bewleyville Magisterial District, and said petition having been presented to the county court of said county at its regular term in August, 1911, praying and asking for a vote to take the sense of the legal and qualified voters in said Magisterial District No. 4, of said county of Breckenridge, known as Bewleyville Magisterial District, upon the question of whether or not cattle generally shall run at large in said Magisterial District, it being the desire of the petitioners herein to prohibit the running at large of all cattle generally and not only certain species thereof.

The said petition having been presented in open court at said August term 1911, the same is now ordered filed of record, and the said petition having been duly filed more than 60 days prior to the next regular November election to be held in November 1911, at which County and State officers may be voted for; and the petitioners having deposited with the County Court the sum of $37.00 dollars the amount required of them by the court to hold said election for the expense of same in said district upon said question.

It is now ordered by the court that said election be held on the next regular election day in November, 1911, in Magisterial District No. 4, of Breckenridge County, Ky., known as Bewleyville Magisterial District of said county and a poll or polls be opened and ballots printed for each poll, if there be more than one, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters in said district upon said question and a copy of this order be published in the Breckenridge News, a newspaper published in Breckenridge County Ky., giving notice of said election, and that same be published in 3 separate issues of said paper and for more than 20 days prior to said election.

The County Court Clerk is hereby ordered and directed to have the ballots for the various precincts in said Magisterial District No. 4, of Breckenridge County properly prepared and the question printed upon the said ballots as follows, to-wit: "Are you in favor of making it unlawful for cattle to run at large on the public highways and unclosed lands of the Bewleyville Magisterial District, No. 4?"

And the officers of the regular November election 1911, are hereby directed to open a poll at each and all voting precincts if there be more than one in said District for said purpose as aforesaid herein.

L. L. Waggoner,
Judge Breckenridge County Court
A Copy Attest:

H. M. Beard,
Clerk Breckenridge County Court

VS.

Patrick Teaff's Adm., Pta's, Eq.

vs.

Patrick Teaff's Heirs, Dft.

No. 3253

By virtue of a judgement and order of sale of Breckenridge Circuit Court rendered at October term thereof, 1910, in the above cause, for the sale of the hereinafter described real estate, and all costs herein, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the court-house door in

Free Railroad Trips To Louisville

the Metropolis of the South—the place to buy your Fall Merchandise to advantage

Beginning September 1, and continuing until further notice we will rebate railroad fares according to the following plan:

PURCHASE a round trip ticket from your home to Louisville. When you have completed your shopping in this store, take your return railroad ticket and sales checks, which are given you with each purchase, at once, to the Credit Desk, first floor, South end of the building, and we will refund in cash, 5 per cent of your total purchases up to the amount of your railroad fare.

Special Notice to Charge Customers

Refund made only in cash at time purchase; refund cannot be credited and at the time of the settlement of the account.

Market St.
and
Fourth Ave J. BACON & SONS Louisville
ESTABLISHED IN 1845
INCORPORATED Kentucky

Hardinsburg, to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday, the 25th day of September, 1911, at one o'clock, p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day), upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property to-wit: A certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being in Breckenridge county, Kentucky, and bounded as follows: Beginning at a stone in the Kincheloe line, one pole south of a black oak, thence down a branch N. 79, E. 22 poles to a sassafras; thence S. 67, E. 10 poles to a sugar tree; then S. 71, E. 8½ poles to a mulberry; thence S. 85, E. 20 poles to a small hickory; thence N. 50, E. 6 poles to a small hickory; thence N. 71, E. 10 poles to a small locust; thence N. 41, E. 8 poles to a small persimmon; thence N. 80, E. 14 poles to a double beech; thence N. 69, E. 6 poles to a hickory; thence N. 86, E. 30 poles to a sycamore; thence N. 64, E. 8 poles to a hickory; thence N. 47, E. 11 poles to a small sycamore; thence N. 6, W. 10 poles to two beeches on the creek; thence up said creek S. 31½, E. 10 poles; S. 11, E. 19 pole; S. 32, E. 22 poles; S. 48, E. 30 poles; S. 30, E. 14 poles to the mouth of a large branch; thence up the branch S. 76, W. 12 poles; S. 50, W. 20 poles; S. 41, W. 26 poles; S. 66, W. 10 poles; S. 21, W. 10 poles; S. 57, W. 12 poles; S. 29, W. 12 poles; S. 44, W. 8 poles; S. 40, W. 10 poles; S. 60, W. 6 poles; S. 52, W. 8 poles; S. 75, W. 5 poles; S. 42, W. 4 poles; S. 23, W. 4 poles; S. 32, W. 3 poles; S. 50, W. 16 poles; N. 54, W. 6 poles; N. 86, W. 8 poles; S. 82, W. 6 poles; N. 20, W. 1 poles; N. 40, W. 8 poles; N. 8, W. 1 poles; N. 57, W. 21 poles; N. 15, W. 8 poles; N. 57, W. 12 poles; to an ash; thence N. 8, E. 80 poles to the beginning, containing 140 acres by survey. There is excised from this boundary a road way 30 feet wide on the entire West end of said land. The purchaser, with approved surety or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. Lien retained to secure payment of purchase money. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms—Lee Walls, Commissioner.

NOTICE!

The Irvington College will open its second school year September 11, 1911. Four departments will be maintained: Preparatory; Normal, Collegiate and Musical. The college has been able to procure the service of a lady who is graduated from Chicago University. She is able to give the very best instructions that can be had. Those who intend to take a preparatory or a college course will do well to give us your consideration.

Good private board can be had for $3.00 and $3.50 per week.

Address all communications to

H. R. KIRK,
or W. J. PIGOTT, Sec. & Treas

FARMERS' FUNDS

are safest in this strong bank. It's risky in town or country, to keep surplus funds lying around, particularly in the country, where it is dangerous even to carry money in the pocket. The farmer can deposit his money here in absolute safety, yet with one of our check books in the house, can use it almost as freely as actual cash, saving time and expense in remitting to distant points, and avoiding risk. Come in and talk it over the next time you're in town.

FIRST STATE BANK, :: Irvington, Ky.

J. C. PAYNE, Cashier

H. E. ROYALTY PERMANENT DENTIST

Hardinsburg, Kentucky

OFFICE . OVER . KINCHELOE'S . PHARMACY

Containing 135 acres, more or less. Out of this is reserved ½ acre for burying ground, to-wit: Beginning at a stone marked "N. E." corner to the lot; thence S. 7 W. 23 poles to a stone marked "S" in Kasey & Carman's line; thence N. 57 W. 38 poles to a stone, marked "K." in said line, thence S. 88 E. 33 poles to the beginning.

securities must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. Lien retained to secure payment of purchase money. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Lee Walls, Commissioner,
By Carrie L. Walls, Deputy.

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS,

JNO. D. BARBAGE SONS' PUBLISHING CO.

Issued Every Wednesday.

EIGHT PAGES.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 20, 1911

Subscription Price $1.00 a year in advance.

BUSINESS LOCALS 10 cents per line, and 5 cents for each additional insertion.

CARDS OF THANKS over five lines charged for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

OBITUARIES charged for at the rate of 5 cents per line. money in advance.

Examine the label on your paper. If it is not correct please notify us.

There is an old verse which runs as follows and we print it for the benefit of our young friend, Marshal Norton.

Once to every man and nation
Comes a moment to decide
In the strife of truth and falsehood
For the good or evil side.
Then it is the brave man chooses,
While the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit
Till his Lord is crucified.

Playing politics is a crime when done by Democrats says the chief of all Republicans, Mr. Taft. How is it with Judge O'Rear here in Kentucky? Isn't he playing politics holding one office and playing for another? If the Judge were a Democrat he would surely be committing a crime in the eyes of a Republican. If Judge O'Rear believes in himself, believes what he is telling the people, he should resign his office as Judge of the Court of Appeals.

John Santher, inventor of the steam shovel, builder of the first locomotive to take a train across the continent, died at his home in Newton, Mass., Sept. 12 at the age of 95. He founded the Globe Locomotive Works, built sixteen war vessels for the government during the Civil War and furnished machinery for the building of the Suez and French Panama Canals. The steam shovels now at work on the Henderson Route are his inventions.

William Addams, the defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination is enthusiastically for the Democratic ticket. He says that every Democrat in his section of the State will support the ticket and that he has no fear but that McCrory will be elected by a handsome majority.

The Hon. Ben Johnson is in the field stumping it for McCrory and the Democratic ticket. Ben Johnson was never known to stump when his party needed him. His influence and hearty support of the ticket will do the ticket good.

We are very much gratified with the response our subscribers are giving to our request for yearly subscriptions instead of those for three months.

There is no possible chance to be run over by a railroad train if you will only Stop! Look! Listen!

LITTLE STORIES WRITTEN

While The Press Thunders

BY LOUISE

Cloverport Not Much Behind.

Every night at the Cloverport depot an army of fellows who can not vote for the next three years or more yet, gather there to have their evening fun. Friday night the train from Louisville was forty minutes late. When it pulled in it stayed a trifle longer than usual and the boys got to talking with the passengers who had their heads out the windows. One man asked: "Say boys, what is the size of this town?" "2000" they said back. "Got electric lights", he continued. "No", they answered. Then the stranger said: "Behind time here". "Yes" answered Casper Gregory, "Forty minutes". My! Such a yell of laughter that followed.

o o o

Miss Winnie Isome, of Durant, Okla., called at the News office the day she left for her home. She likes Durant, and has a nice position there in a business office. The place is quite a little city. Besides Short & Haynes' drug store there are four or five others and five or six banks. Vegetation there is, as good as here, only the season is quite earlier. "We have fine chickens in the spring, but in the fall an insect, something like fleas gets on them and kills them," she said. Miss Isome has never visited Oklahoma City as it is off her way coming to Kentucky. She thinks the shortest way home, without the sights, is the best.

o o o

Idleness is the sister of impatience.

o o o

In a short and appropriate address at the school opening Mr. Marion Weathersholt wound up his remarks by saying,

"Now, boys, I want you to work hard—as hard as you can—and when school is over I want you—for me—to play ball just as hard."

o o o

When Catherine Claire Carter was a few days old she received a post card on which was written in reference to her initials: "I am glad you have come to C and be Convinced".

o o o

Have you ever noticed when a man marries, that his old sweetheart usually says: "She is not the style of girl I thought John would marry."

o o o

Why is it that when a man tries to put himself on a higher plane, that nine persons out of ten who are not trying too, will say to him, "Gee, but you are getting good!"

o o o

Mother At The State Fair.

We did not go to the State Fair, but mother went, consequently, we know much about it—more than we did last year after a visit of two whole days. Mother can see more in a day than most women can in a week. I think it is because she was reared on a farm and a farmer's daughter if she has any sense at all, sees more than the general run of girls.

Bright, quick country girls can see more things to laugh about and have more fun than any others. In this respect the girls of the small towns come next. City girls miss a lot of wholesome, everyday joy. A bunch of country girls can go to the State Fair and get barrels of pleasure, while the city girls stay at home, waiting to go to moving picture show to see some tragedy reproduced and then boast of the fact that they did not even go to the fair. Just the people at the State Fair are a moving picture show themselves. They are alive with life and laughter and excitement! They are out for a jolly time and all who join them have it. Mother said she never was in such a crowd as was there Wednesday.

So many home folks from Meade county as well as Breckenridge to chat with and "talk over things." Dad pulled her away from the hogs and pigs by the hardest, to hear Governor Marshall, of Indiana. She was charmed with his personality and his sincerity. Mother is right good in sizing up the man—and makes no difference whether he is a Democrat or a Republican, a Methodist or a Baptist, a beau or a cher—she knows whereof she speaks.

She enjoyed the show of horses and cattle. There was the finest little Jersey there, broad enough across her back for a base-ball diamond. Talking about cows, mother said last year aunt Emma Falkeigh went to the fair with some of her friends and they saw a man milking. Aunt Emma remarked she wished she had a dollar for as many times as she had done that. Her friends declared she couldn't. To prove to them she asked the man to let her show the women what she could do. Aunt Emma rolled up her sleeves and a milk maid could not have excelled her. Aunt Emma said: "Yes, I can milk a cow and I am proud of it. I am proud of anything I know how to do."

By the way, mother saw Mr. Walter Moorman, Jr., of Glen Dean, in the Judge's ring and pointed him out as a Breckenridge county man. Mr. C. Vic Robertson was also a Judge of the horses.

And such horses! Pharaoh's could not have matched them. The horses from the Lafayette Stock Farm of Indiana were great and the harness they wore was magnificent. The draft horses of Frank Fehr's—the beer man—were beauties. Mother called them "Frank Brewer's horses".

She never saw as much junk (jewelry.) They were selling diamonds (imitations) for $6, as large as the end of your thumb and the saleslady said you couldn't tell them from $600 stones. And people bought them, but the fool killer was not there. Had he been, he would have certainly been busy, especially where they had that cider mill. There was an old fashioned cider mill, but the man wasn't selling old fashioned cider. If you looked long enough you didn't have to buy any to learn it was not the real stuff. Mother said the man had a barrel of apples at the mill, but not a single one did he ever use. He made a racket with a stick and pan (or something) to make people believe he was grinding apples and making the cider right there. He sure fooled most of the crowd, but fortunately all of the crowd were not fools.

The Floral Hall made her head swim—too much in there for my mother. She became very much interested in the Canadian display. Canada is doing some extensive advertising in the United States. You know they have displays to persuade people to go to Canada to live. What impressed her most there were the vegetables. They grow celery root something like a turnip. It is very delicious for salads.

The display of stoves attracted mother—because Mildred wants a new cook stove. They showed a stove that had the oven up high; you don't have to stoop to put the biscuits in and it has a glass door so you can watch the cake bake. Every woman who cooks deserves such a stove.

Mother came home with an ambition—she always does. Now she wants enough money to pay the expenses of every boy and girl in Breckenridge county to the State Fair next year so that they might see what can be done on the farms here in Kentucky and in our homes. She thought the exhibits were marvels, everything there from a crocheted counterpane to the brass band revealed to her the glories of our Commonwealth. Next year she better not leave her daughters at home!

o o o

It takes strange ideas to make the world go around. We picked up an idea lately set forth by a young lady when a woman said: "I shall be glad when the style changes for shirtwaists to open in the back, they are too hard to fasten". The girl reasoned a minute then replied: "I won't, because often I leave a button unfastened just to give people the pleasure of calling my attention to the fact that my waist is unbuttoned." A person does take a bit of joy in saying to a pretty girl "I beg your pardon, but the second button on your waist is not fastened."

STATE POLITICS

A Hint To School Teachers

Judge O'Rear says he wants to divorce the schools from politics, but he is careful to put his candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction in charge of Republican headquarters in Western Kentucky. Is this a hint to present and prospective school teachers to come across?—Telegram.

Carry Thing With A High Hand

The two Republican members of the State Election Board are carrying things with a very high hand. They are refusing to appoint the Democrats that Hon. Chas. McDowell, of Danville, the Democratic member recommends but are appointing Democrats that suit them. When the Democrats get the reins again and begin to give them their own medicine you will hear a howl of "Gobolism" go up all over the state. This high-handed outrage is sure to come home to roost upon the perpetrators.

Hard On O'Rear

Once do a doubtful thing and it will stay with you. When Judge O'Rear declared that Senator Bradley was "the greatest living Kentuckian," he little thought he was saying something that would lose him votes throughout the State. By endorsing Bradley the Republican candidate placed a crown of thorns on his own head. His declaration has been received with guffaws from one end of the State to the other—Henderson Gleaner.

Clarence Wood's Cap

To offset the defection of our good friend Ex-Mayor Wood, of Richmond, Ky., the one, lone, Madison county Democrat who is opposing his townsmen, McCrory, so far as we have heard, we were told, Monday, of one Madison county family of eight stalwart sons, and all of them Republicans, who had announced that they would all support McCrory in November, and the same informant said there were at least sixty Republicans in Richmond, who were out and out for McCrory. So Clarence's caper seems to help instead of hurt. McCrory—Winchester Democrat.

To The Voters Of Breckenridge County.

Cloverport, Ky., Sept. 18, 1911.—After being solicited and urged by a great number of my friends, I have decided to become a candidate to represent Breckenridge County in the lower house of the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Republican convention which meets in Hardinsburg, Monday September 25.

Feeling that the people are entitled to know exactly where their candidates for representative stand on all public questions, I wish, unreservedly to say that I am in entire accord and sympathetic with the vigorous campaign now being waged in Kentucky, by Judge O'Rear for cleaner and better government and that I most heartily approve of the platform on which he is running.

I especially wish to emphasize that I am unconditionally in favor of, and in the event of my nomination and election, pledge myself to vote for and support a uniform county unit local option law, applying to all counties in the state, as advocated in the Republican platform.

Pledging you my best endeavors at all times to faithfully and conscientiously represent the PEOPLE of my county if elected, I am, Very respectfully yours,

C. W. Moorman.

Lee Walls, Deputy.

THE BANK OF HARDINSBURG & TRUST CO., :: Hardinsburg, Ky.

Notice to Correspondents

Again we request you to ALWAYS SIGN YOUR NAME to your letters. We cannot afford to publish matter unless we are assured of its authority. Correspondents please mail your items on Saturday night so they will be in the News office by Monday morning.

J. D. SEATON and W. N. HEAD, Managers

THE CLOVERPORT TIE AND LUMBER COMPANY

Cloverport, Ky.

Is in the market for

Railroad Ties

and all kinds of

Logs & Lumber

Write us for further information

The Cloverport Tie and Lumber Company

Cloverport, Kentucky

The Bank is the Parent and Teacher of every successful Enterprise in its Community

FARM
SHOP
MILL STORE FACTORY

If all of the business men and farmers in this community would BANK their money right here at home instead of hoarding it, or sending it away it would help every other man in this community and therefore help himself. It is merely SELF-PROTECTION and SELF-DEVELOPMENT for us to keep our money right here and help OURSELVES. We will gladly give our counsel to anyone who wants business advice—especially if we can steer you away from any investments which might cause you a loss. BE CAREFUL.

Let OUR Bank be YOUR Bank.

We pay 3% interest on Time Deposits.

THE BANK OF HARDINSBURG & TRUST CO., :: Hardinsburg, Ky.

the same property in which Mary B. Oelze resides.

The purchaser, with approved surety or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. Lein retained to secure payment of purchase money.

Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Approximated debt, interest and cost $812.50. Lee Walls, Commissioner; Carrie L. Walls, Deputy.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Breckenridge Circuit Court, Kentucky.

Anta M. Roberts, Plaintiff, } Equity
vs. Anta M. Roberts, Heirs, Defendant, } Against
No. 327.

By virtue of a Judgement and Order of Sale of Breckenridge Circuit Court, rendered at May Term thereof, 1911, in the above cause, for the sum of six hundred dollars, ($600.00,) with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from the 22 day of January, 1911, until paid, and all costs herein, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Hardinsburg, to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday the 9th day of October, 1911, at one o'clock P. M., or thereabout (being Circuit Court day), upon a credit Six and Twelve months, the following described property, to-wit: Three certain tracts of land, lying in Breckenridge County, Ky., described as follows: On the waters of Tar Fork of Clover Creek and described as follows: 1st tract beginning at a White oak supposed to be Wm. Powers corner and running thence with his line N. 75 E. 22 poles to a stone with pointers in said line, thence S. 14 E. 28 poles to a small Mulberry in Hawkins line, thence with his line W. 28 poles to a hickory and Dogwood; thence with another of Hawkins lines S. 105 poles to a large white oak, near a drain, thence a straight line to the beginning containing 34 acres; and another tract near the foregoing, lying on the waters of Caney Creek, bounded as follows: Beginning at a hickory in Samuel Rice's line and running N. 73 E. 82 poles to a white oak, thence N. 96 poles to a red oak and two hickories on a barren hill side; thence W. 22 poles to two white oaks on a ridge; thence S. 65 N. 26 poles to a white oak near a small drain thence S. 16 E. 22 poles to a gum, Samuel Rice's corner then S. 5. E. 70 poles to the beginning, containing 50 acres, also that portion of the Rice tract which lies on the east side of the Cloverport & Bowing Green Road, supposed to contain about 12 acres, being a corner of said tract detached from the remainder by said road. The foregoing 3 tracts of land being the same deeded to Anta Roberts, by Cincinnati Cooperative Company.

The purchaser, with approved surety or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment. Lein retained to secure payment of purchase money. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Lee Walls, Commissioner.

Carrie L. Walls, Deputy.

"Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use the Lewisport BEST Flour".

Many requests from Catarrh sufferers who use atomizers have caused us to put up Liquid Cream Balm, a new and convenient form of Ely's Cream Balm, the only remedy for Catarrh which can always be depended on. In power to allay inflammation, to cleanse the clogged air-passages, to promote free, natural breathing, the two forms of Cream Balm are alike. Liquid Cream Balm is sold by all druggists for 75 cents, including spraying tube. Mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Mrs. Mike Kraft, of Louisville, who has been visiting Mrs. J. T. O'Connell for the past two weeks, returned to her home Wednesday.

A Reliable Remedy FOR CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm

is quickly absorbed.

Gives Relief at Once.

It cleanses, soothes,

heals and protects

the diseased membrane resulting from Catarrh and drives

a Cold in the Head quickly.

Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell.

Half size

60 cts. at Druggists or by mail.

Liquid

Cream Balm for use in atomizers 75 cts.

Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

If you want Fire, Life, Sick and Accidental Insurance, call on S. C. Taul, Cloverport, Ky.

O. T. Tague, of Van Wert, Ohio, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Tague.

J. C. Nolte went to Louisville Monday with his daughter, Miss Eloise, who will enter the Cross School.

Miss Elizabeth Skillman, of Morganfield, leaves tomorrow for Nashville to enter Belmont College.

Mr. Ningent, who has been confined on the L. H. & St. L. R. R. for twenty years, has been ill of appendicitis.

Word has been received here that Hugh B. Adkison is ill at his home near Chicago. He has pneumonia.

The next civil term of the Cloverport Police court will be held the first Monday in October.—V. G. Bage, Judge

Dr. J. H. Hart, of McDaniels, was here Tuesday, the guest of Miss Pearl Mays. They attended the State Fair.

LOST—Small Gold Crescent Pin, forgotten—not with pearl center. Kindly return to News Office and receive reward.

Mrs. Geo. Fuqua and children, of Hawesville, who have been visiting relatives here returned home Thursday, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Sasseffey.

Miss Eva Mays' school gave Robert Oelze a surprise party on his fifth birthday at the May home. Cake and cream were served to all on the table in the yard under the umbrella tree.

Announcement of the Engagement of Miss Lewis to Mr. Wilson

The Rev. Mr. J. T. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, of Fordsville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Reba, to Mr. Ballard E. Wilson, of Glen Dean, Ky. The wedding will take place at the Rudd House, Owensboro, October the twelfth.

KENNEDY-JARBOE

Announcement—Wedding will take place October the 18th, Hardinsburg

Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Kennedy to Mr. Preston Jarboe.

The marriage will take place Wednesday morning, October the eighteenth at seven o'clock, at St. Romuald's church, Hardinsburg.

Roads Need Attention.

Perhaps nothing has been exploited to a greater extent than the King road drag, and perhaps there is no implement that is more generally neglected. Whether past experience shows that the road drag is not the useful and valuable implement its champions would have us believe or whether it is simply neglecting the use of a good thing is not apparent, but the result is the same. The roads need attention and they need it more frequently than they get it. If the road drag is not the thing then something else should be used. But use something.

The piano contest at Sippel's shoe store will close December 26th.

Mrs. Haynes, of Louisville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Hofford Behen.

A. Burt Muir, of Louisville, was here Saturday the guest of H. L. Stater.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport Best Flour."

Mack D. Cashman came from Brazil, Ind., last week to visit his old home.

Mrs. Jess Weatherholt, of Owensboro, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weatherholt.

Miss Florence May, of Louisville, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hammon.

Some one will get a piano for Christmas. Who will it be?—Conrad Sippel.

Dr. R. W. Meador and family have returned from New Mexico to their old home, Custer.

Toilet Articles,

Face Powder,

Talcum Powder,

and Creams

AT COST

GIBSON & SON

STOLYPIN EXPECTED ATTEMPTS ON HIS LIFE.

Said So When He Accepted the Russian Premiership in 1905.

The Russian premier, P. A. Stolypin, who was recently shot by an assassin, had expected attempts on his life.

"I have no doubt that attempts will be made upon my life," said M. Stolypin when he accepted the premiership in July, 1905, "but I hope that order will be restored and stability established in Russia before they are successful."

On Aug. 25, 1906, a bomb was thrown into his country house on Aptekarsky Island while he was holding a public reception. The explosion killed thirty-two persons and wounded a much larger number, including the premier's daughter of fifteen and his son of three. The daughter was crippled for life. Stolypin, who was in his office at the moment, came off unharmed, although persons with him there were knocked down and a bottle of ink thrown from his desk by the force of the explosion spattered its contents over him.

This attempt at slaughter marked the climax of a reign of terror in many parts of Russia. Stolypin issued orders to the provincial authorities to spare no efforts to stop the disturbances. Arrests followed everywhere. The prisoners got drumhead court martial. Defense in most cases proved useless. Executions occurred in a few hours after arrests. Official records in seven months showed that 1,080 men and women suffered death by shooting or hanging by this process. He called off the executions by summary process of his own volition when he felt that the terrorists had been subdued and that he had blocked revolution.

M. Stolypin was born in 1863, was graduated from the University of St. Petersburg in 1884, served for four years in the ministries of the interior and agriculture and in 1899 was made marshal of the provincial nobility. He was vice governor of Grodno in 1902 and governor of Saratoff in 1903.

CHINA NEARING CRISIS.

Test of Government by Provincials Believed to Be Inevitable.

In the opinion of students of oriental affairs, China is rapidly approaching a great crisis in her history. The uprising in Szechuan province is expected to extend to other neighboring provinces, and especially to the southward, where the Mongolian element has for many years been opposed to the reigning Manchu dynasty. Evidently prepared for trouble, the Chinese government has been quick to dispatch troops into the disaffected district.

It is believed at Washington that the government will be able to suppress the present disturbance, though the unforeseen disastrous flooding of the Yangtze valley is expected to drive thousands of the unfortunate natives, whose means of support have been destroyed, into the ranks of the revolutionists.

But it is believed that this Szechuan uprising is only the precursor of other outbreaks in different parts of the Flower Kingdom, for the fact is that the struggle now going on is really a gigantic test of the relative strength and power of the central government as opposed to the provincial governments. In other words, the situation resembles the great feudal wars of Europe in the middle ages. Japan also had to pass through a similar ordeal before the emperor was able to break the power of his numerous barons, and it is believed that the Chinese government will now be put to the same test.

While the sympathy of occidental nations must remain with the Chinese central government, there can be no interference in this great internal strife, and the activities of other nations, at least for the present, must be confined to the protection of their own citizens resident in China.

GOLF CLUBS FOR TAFT.

Andrew Carnegie Sends the President a Set Made in Scotland.

Andrew Carnegie has sent Mr. Taft a set of golf clubs. They are the handiwork of J. Dusse of Dornoch, Scotland, which is Carnegie's native land. Mr. Carnegie intrusted the clubs for delivery to J. G. Schmidlapp of Cincinnati, an old friend of the president, who has recently been visiting Skibo and Europe. Mr. Schmidlapp presented them to Mr. Taft.

With the clubs came the well wishes of Mr. Carnegie, who says that he favors golf for the president because it will give him health to continue his work for world peace, the other great game besides golf in which the president and Mr. Carnegie are interested.

MAUSOLEUM TO HOLD 2,000.

Fireproof Structure Costing $100,000 to Be Built in Cincinnati.

A mammoth fireproof in construction and gigantic in proportions is to be erected in Cincinnati. It will hold the bodies of 2,000 persons and will cost over $100,000.

The interior will be of concrete and the exterior of stone, with granite trimmings. The crypts will be large enough to hold the biggest coffin yet made, and in case of a family desiring to bury a member in this manner an opening will be chosen. The confined body will be slid into the opening, and as soon as the mourners leave workmen with mixed concrete will cover the opening, thereby hermetically sealing the coffin and its contents.

Wants.

Said So When He Accepted the Russian Premiership in 1905.

Farm for Sale
Farm of 10 acres, 5 miles above Cloverport, Ky. on Indian Creek. Plenty of wood for fuel; 500 yards of Cedars and Cedar post timber; fine grass pasture; good garden spot; 10 acres in bottom of creek; 100 yards of creek; excellent well in yard; one in pasture; good sodding on farm; two-story frame house, 4 rooms, painted; chicken house; a storehouse 14x25 with new roof; buildings on river lot; sold right away. $100 gets it. Leon Lee Graves, Holt.

For Sale—Gasoline Engine and Grist Mill
FOR SALE—8 horsepower International gasoline engine and grist mill complete. R. T. Coombs, Hardinsburg, Ky. No. 1.

For Sale—Hay
FOR SALE—40 tons good hay—W. L. Harrell Kirk, Ky.

For Sale—Camera
FOR SALE—1/2x3/4 View Camera. Complete with lens, two extra lenses. Will sell for half price.—C. G. Hubbard, Cloverport, Ky.

Shropshiredown Sheep for Sale
REGISTERED. LUCK: LUCK: registered and grade buck lamb; high grade yearling bucks; grade ewes.—W. A. STITH, Guston, Ky.

For Sale
FOR SALE—About 600 acres fine fertile land situated in Big Spring Valley, a part of the Ben C. Clark farm, owned by Mrs. H. Kemper and Mrs. A. M. Hardaway of Minot, N. D. Will sell as a whole or in two parts. Terms reasonable; for further information call or address: BEN C. CLARK, Big Spring, Ky.

For Sale
FOR SALE—A 15 horse power stationary Gas Engine; Watkins make, in good repair.—Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

For Sale
FOR SALE—Deeds, Mortgages and all kinds of legal blanks.—Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

For Sale—Scholarship
FOR SALE—Scholarship in the Bowing Green University, good in any department of that university. Breckinridge News, Cloverport, Ky.

Strayed!
A matured female Collie dog with Sable head, white collar and dark Sable body.

$10 Reward if returned to

CHAS. H. DRURY, Lexington, Ky.

Henderson Route Notes

$3.00 Cloverport to Louisville and return Oct. 15-16 and for trains 146 and 143 of 17th, good to return Oct. 23.

0 0 0
$5.65 Cloverport to Lexington, Ky. and return, Sept. 23, 24 and for trains due to arrive in Lexington before Sept. 24.

0 0 0

$3. Cloverport to Louisville and return, Sept. 9 to 16 inclusive; good to return Sept. 20. Account Kentucky State Fair.

SHORT SERMONS ON GOOD ROADS.

No farming section which has once had good roads would ever go back to bad roads.

High freight rates are not nearly as heavy a tax on the shippers of stock and other farm produce as bad roads are.

Only a very rich country could afford the tremendous financial drain of bad roads.

A good road is to a country district what a paved street is to the city property that adjoins it. It makes business for that neighborhood.

A farmer living on a good road is a free man. He is not dependent on weather conditions. He is able to sell his stock and grain and fruit at the best market prices. The railroads have to serve the man who can get his stuff to a shipping point any day in the year.

Money spent for good roads is as good an investment for improving the farm as is money put into stock sheds, grain cribs, fences, seeds or anything else that makes the farm pay.

Bones are as essential as money and muscle in roadmaking.

Subscribe Right Now.

High freight rates are not nearly as heavy a tax on the shippers of stock and other farm produce as bad roads are.

Tar on Roads Disinfects.

Medical authorities have announced that in addition to its dust laying qualities a tar preparation is highly beneficial to the community using it on its roads, owing to its disinfectant properties. According to the health authorities of Battersea, England, in infant mortality has largely decreased in that populous district since its streets were surfaced with tar macadam.

J. C. NOLTE & BRO. Cloverport, Ky.

WANTED! WANTED!

100 Cattle to Feed...

Cows, Heifers, Steers, Bulls

BEARD BROS., Hardinsburg, Ky.

SUBSCRIBE NOW

Parties Wishing to Build!

If You Want Building Material of any Kind

Call on Gregory & Co.

If You do not know Just How you want to Build

Call on Gregory & Co.

If You want to know just what your Building will Cost

Call on Gregory & Co.

If You want to make your building the most convenient for the least money

Call on Gregory & Co.

If You want to know just how to build your house to Save Time and Trouble

Call on Gregory & Co.

--Office Near Depot--

Information in regard to prices of material can be had at the Bank of Cloverport

RURAL TELEPHONES

Mr. Farmer, are you interested? If so, call on the manager of the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company and have him explain the special "Farmers Line" rate.

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH COMPANY

(Incorporated.)

SUBSCRIBE NOW

and keep in touch with the Political Situation

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910.
By Anna Katherine Rohrbach

CHAPTER XXII.

"WHERE IS MY BROTHER?"

WHAT is the explanation of Carmel's reappearance in town and of this sensational introduction of her into the courtroom in a restored state of health of which no one, so far as known, had any intuition save the man who was responsible for her appearance? The particulars are due you.

She had passed some weeks at Lakewood under the eye of Miss Unwin, the nurse who was detailed to watch as well as tend her. During these weeks she gave no sign of improvement mentally, though she constantly gained strength otherwise and impressed everybody with the clear light in her eye and the absence of everything suggestive of gloom in her expression and language. There was the same complete loss of memory up to the time of the tragic occurrence which had desolated her home; the same harping at odd moments on Adelphie's happiness and her own prospect of seeing this dear sister very soon which had marked the opening days of her convalescence. But beyond and back of all this was some secret joy, inexpressible to the nurse, which helped rather than retarded the sick girl's recovery.

Meanwhile Carmel was allowed such liberty as her condition required, but was never left alone for a moment after a certain day when her eye suddenly took on a strange look of confused inquiry totally dissociated with anything she saw or heard.

The awakening took place at Lakewood. Carmel had been out and was just crossing the hall of her hotel to the elevator when she stopped with a violent start and, clutching the air, was caught by her nurse, who had hurried up at the first intimation of anything unusual in the condition of her patient.

The cause of this agitation was immediately apparent. Near them sat two ladies, each with a small wine-glass in her hand—a common sight enough, but it worked a revolution in Carmel's darkened mind. The light of youthful joyousness fled from her face, and the cheek, just palming softly with new life, blanched to the deathlike hue of mortal suffering. Dropping her eyes from the women, she said to the woman in whose arms she felt herself supported:

"Explain! Where am I?"

"At Lakewood, in a hotel. You have been ill and are only just recovering."

Her hand went up to her cheek, the one that had been burned, and still showed the deep traces of that accident.

"I remember," said she. Then, with another glance at her dress, which had studiously been kept cheerful, she remarked, with deep reprobation: "My sister is dead. Why am I not black?"

The nurse, realizing her responsibility (she said afterward that it was the most serious moment of her life), subduced her own astonishment at this proof of her young patient's knowledge of a crime of which she was universally supposed to be entirely ignorant and, bestowing an assuring smile on the agitated girl, observed softly:

"You were too ill to be burdened with black. You are better now and may assume it if you will. I will help you buy your mourning."

"Yes; you look like a kind woman. What is your name, please, and are we here alone in this great hotel?"

Now, as a matter of expediency, to save Carmel from the innumerable curiosity of the crowd and herself from the importunities of the New York reporters, Miss Unwin had registered herself and her charge under assumed names. She was, therefore, forced to reply:

"My name is Huckles, and we are here alone. But that need not worry you. I have watched over you night and day for many weeks."

"You have? Because of this slight burn?" Again Carmel's hand went to her cheek.

"Not on account of that only. You have had a serious illness quite apart from that injury. But you are better; you are almost well—well enough to go home, if you will."

"I cannot go home—not just yet. I'm—I'm not strong enough. But we shouldn't be here alone without some man to look after us. Miss Huckles, where is my brother?"

At this question, uttered with emphasis, with anxiety—and indignation!—Miss Unwin felt the emotion she had so successfully subdued up to this moment betray itself in her voice as she answered with a quiet motion toward the elevator: "Let us go up to our room. There I will answer all your questions."

But Carmel, with the waywardness of her years, or perhaps with deeper reasoning powers than the other would be apt to attribute to her, broke softly away from Miss Unwin's detailing hand and, walking directly into the office, looked about for the newspaper stand. She reached it just as a boy stepped into view with the evening bulletin, on which had been written these words:

The last juror obtained in the trial of Arthur Cumberland for the murder of his sister, Adelphie.

Carmel saw and stood, a breathless image of horror. A couple of gentlemen came running, but the nurse warded them back and herself caught Carmel and upheld her, in momentary dread of another mental fit if not physical collapse.

But Carmel had come back into the world of consciousness to stay. Accepting her nurse's support, but giving no sign of waning faculties or imperfect understanding of what she had seen, she spoke quite clearly and with her eyes fixed upon Miss Unwin.

"So that is why I am here, away from all my friends. Was I too ill to be told? Could you make me know what was happening—you or the doctors or—or anybody?"

"You were much too ill," protested the nurse, leading her toward the elevator and so by degrees to her room. "And Arthur—poor Arthur, has been the sufferer! Tell me the whole story. I can bear it," she pleaded. "I can bear anything but not knowing. Why should he have fallen under suspicion? He was not even there. I must go to him once."

With the sudden rending of the clouds which had obscured her intellect strange powers had awakened in this young girl.

"You shall go," began the nurse, and stopped.

Carmel was not listening. Another change of thought had come. "How can I?" fell in unconscious betrayal from her lips. "How can I?" Then she stood silent, ghastly with lack of color one minute and rosy red with its excess the next, until it was hard to tell in which extreme her feeling spoke most truly.

What was the feeling? Nurse Unwin felt it imperative to know. She approached Carmel with renewed offers of help and such expressions of sympathy as she thought might lure her into open speech.

But discretion had come with fear, and Carmel, while not disdaining the other's kindness, instantly made it apparent that, whatever her burden and however unsuited it was to her present weak condition, it was not one she felt willing to share.

"I must think," she murmured as she finally followed the nurse's lead and seated herself on a lounge. "Arthur on trial for his life! Arthur on trial for his life! And Adelphie was not even murdered!"

"No?" gasped the nurse, intent on every word this long silenced witness let fall.

"Had he no friend? Was there not some one to understand?" Adelphie—here her head fell till her face was lost sight—"had—a—lover?"

"Yes. Mr. Elwood Ranelagh. He was the first to be arrested for the crime."

The soul in Carmel seemed to vanish at this word. The eyes, which had been so farseeing the moment before, grew blank and the little young body stiff with that death in life which is almost worse to look upon than death itself. Then the stony eyes softened and fell, the rigidity of her frame relaxed, and Carmel sank back again on the sofa and tried to read the headlines on the open sheet before her. But her eyes were unequal to the task. With a sob she dropped the paper and entreated the nurse to relate to her from her own knowledge all that had passed.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin compiled, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she was not deceived by Carmel's exclamation that there had been no murder—was unknown as yet to her patient, as it must be from what she had said, and the absolute impossibility, as she thought, of her having known what went on in the Whispering Pines, then it had better remain unknown to her.

Miss Unwin complied, but with reservations. She said nothing about the marks on Adelphie's throat or of the special reason which the police had for arresting Mr. Ranelagh. She did not dare. Strangulation was a horrible death to contemplate, and if this factor in the crime—she

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Copyright, 1910, by Anna Katharine Green

ment on he was looked upon with less harshness. People showed a disposition to discern innocence where perhaps they had secretly desired until now to discover guilt.

"Miss Cumberland, will you be good enough to tell us where you were at or near the hour of 10 on the evening of your sister's death?"

"I was in the elopement—in the house you call the Whispering Pines."

At this astounding reply, unexpected by every one present save myself and the unhappy prisoner, incredulity, seasoned with amusement, marked every countenance. Carmel Cumberland in the elopement that night—who had been found at a late hour in her own home, injured and unconscious? It was not to be believed, or it would not have been if Arthur, with less self control than he had hitherto maintained, had not shown by his morose air and the silent drooping of his head that he accepted this statement, wild and improbable as it seemed. Mr. Fox started to rise at her words; but, noting the prisoner's attitude, he hastily represented himself, realizing, perhaps, that evidence of which he had never dreamed lay at the bottom of the client's manner and the counsel's compunction.

Mr. Moffat, who saw everything, smiled slightly as he spoke encouragingly to his witness and propounded his next question:

"Miss Cumberland, was your sister with you when you went to the club-house?"

"No; we went separately."

"How? Will you explain?"

"I drove there. I don't know how Adelaide went."

"You drove there?"

"Yes. I had Arthur harness up his horse for me, and I drove there."

A moment of silence, then a slow awakening on the part of judge, jury and prosecution to the fact that the case was taking a turn for which they were ill prepared. To Mr. Moffat it was a moment of intense self congratulation, and something of the gratification he felt crept into his voice as he said:

"Miss Cumberland, will you describe this horse?"

"It was a gray horse. It has a large black spot on its left shoulder."

"To what vehicle was it attached?"

"To a cutter—my brother's cutter."

"Was that brother with you? Did he accompany you in your ride to the Whispering Pines?"

"No. I went quite alone."

Entrancement had now seized upon every mind. Even if her testimony were not true, but merely the wanderings of a mind not fully restored, the interest of it was intense.

"And how did you return? With whom and by what means did you regain your own house?"

The answer came with simple directness:

"In the same way I went. I drove back in my brother's cutter, and, being all alone, just as before, I put the horse away myself and went into my empty home and up to Adelaide's room, where I lost consciousness."

"Miss Cumberland, do you often ride out alone on nights like that?"

"I never did before. I would not have dared to do it then if I had not taken a certain precaution."

"And what was this precaution?"

Women!

If weak, you need Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from gentle herbs, acts in a natural manner, and has no bad results, as some of the strong drugs sometimes used. As a medicine—a tonic—for weak, tired, worn-out women, Cardui has been a popular success for over 50 years.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Lula Walden, of Gramlin, S. C., followed this advice. Read her letter: "I was so weak, when I first began to take Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Now, I can do all the general housework, for a family of 9." Try Cardui for your troubles. It may be the very remedy you need.

"I wore an old coat of my brother's over my dress and one of his hats on my head."

It was out—the fact for the suppression of which I had suffered arrest without a word, because of which Arthur had gone even further and submitted to trial with the same constancy. Instinctively his eyes and mine met, and at that moment there was established between us an understanding that was in strong contrast to the surrounding tumult, which now exceeded all limits, as the highly wrought up spectators realized that these statements, if corroborated, destroyed one of the strongest points which had been made by the prosecution. This caused a stay in the proceedings until order was partially restored, and the judge's voice could be heard in a warning that the courtroom would be cleared of all spectators if this break of decorum was repeated.

"Miss Cumberland, will you now give the jury the full particulars of that evening's occurrences as witnessed by yourself? Begin your relation, if you please, with an account of the last meal you had together," said Mr. Moffat when the trial was resumed.

Carmel hesitated. Her youth—her conscience, perhaps—shrank in manifest distress from this inquisition.

"Ask me a question," she prayed. "I do not know how to begin."

"Very well. Who were seated at the dinner table that night?"

"My sister, my brother, Mr. Ranelagh and myself."

"Did anything uncommon happen during the meal?"

"Yes; my sister ordered wine and had our glasses all filled. She never drank wine herself, but she had her glass filled also. Then she dismissed Helen, the waitress, and when the girl was gone she rose and held up her glass and invited us to do the same. We will drink to my coming marriage," said she, but when we had done this she turned upon Arthur, with bitter words about his habits, and, declaring that another bottle of wine should never be opened again in the house, unclosed her fingers and let her glass drop on the table, where it broke. Arthur then let his fall and I mine. We all three let our glasses fall and break."

"And Mr. Ranelagh?"

"He did not let his fall. He set it down on the cloth. He had not drunk from it."

Clear, perfectly clear, tallying with what we had heard from other sources.

"Miss Cumberland, where were you looking when you let your glass fall?"

My heart gave a bound. I remembered that moment well. So did she, as could be seen from the tremulous flush and the determination with which she forced herself to speak.

"At Mr. Ranelagh," she answered finally.

"Not at your brother?"

"No."

"And at whom was Mr. Ranelagh looking?"

"At—me."

"Not at your sister?"

"No."

"Was anything said?"

"Not then. With the droppings of the glasses we all drew back from the table and walked toward a little room where we sometimes sat before going into the library. Arthur went first, and Mr. Ranelagh and I followed. Adelaide coming last. We—went this way into the little room and—what? What other question do you wish to ask?" she finished, with a burning blush.

Mr. Moffat was equal to the appeal.

"Did anything happen? Did Mr. Ranelagh speak to you or you to him, or did your sister Adelaide speak?"

"No one spoke, but Mr. Ranelagh put a little slip of paper into my hand—a note. As he did this my brother looked round. I don't know whether he saw the note or not, but his eyes caught mine, and I may have blushed. Next moment he was looking past me, and presently he flung himself out of the room and I heard him going upstairs. Adelaide had joined me by this time, and Mr. Ranelagh turned to speak to her, and—and I went over to the bookshelves to read my note."

"And did you read it then?"

"No; I was afraid. I waited till Mr. Ranelagh was gone, then I went up to my room and read it. It was not a—a note to be glad of—I mean, proud of. I'm afraid I was a little glad of it at first. I was a wicked girl."

"Miss Cumberland, before you tell me about this note will you be good enough to inform us whether any 'I was a wicked girl.'"

"Miss Cumberland, before you tell me about this note will you be good enough to inform us whether any 'I was a wicked girl.'"

"I don't know what I did first. I was very excited—glad one minute, deeply wretched and very frightened the next. I must have sat down, for I was shaking very much and fell a little sick. The sight of that key had brought up pictures of the clubhouse, and I thought and thought how quiet it was and how far away and how cold it was, too, and how secret. I would go there for what I had to do there! And then I saw in my fancy one of its rooms, with the moon in it, and—but I soon shut my eyes to that. I heard Arthur moving about his room, and this made me start up and go out into the hall again."

"Arthur's room is near and Adelaide's far off, but I went to Adelaide's first. Her door was shut, and when I went to open it I found it locked. Calling her name, I said that I was tired and would be glad to say good night. She did not answer at once. When she did her voice was strange, though what she said was very simple—I was to please myself: she was going to retire too. And then she tried to say good night, but she only half said it, like one who is hollowed how he suffered under this ordeal. At me she never glanced.

"I do not remember the words," she said finally as her eyes fell again to her lap. "But I remember its meaning. It was an invitation for me to leave town with him that very evening and be married at some place he mentioned. He said it would be the best way to—end—matters."

CHAPTER XXIV. "I LOVED ADELAIDE BETTER THAN MYSELF."

THIS brought Mr. Fox to his feet.

"Turning to the Judge, he cried: "This testimony is irrelevant and incompetent, and I ask to have it stricken out."

Mr. Moffat's voice as he arose to answer was like honey poured upon gall.

"It is neither irrelevant nor incompetent, and if it were the objection comes too late. My friend should have objected to the question."

"The whole course of counsel has been very unusual," began Mr. Fox.

"Yes, but so is the case. I beg your honor to believe that in some of its features this case is not only unusual, but almost without a precedent. I beg that my witness may be allowed to proceed and tell her story in all its details."

"The motion is denied," declared the Judge.

Mr. Fox sat down, to the universal relief of all but the two persons most interested—Arthur and myself.

Mr. Moffat, generous enough or discreet enough to take no note of his opponent's discomfiture, lifted a paper from the table and held it toward the witness.

"Do you recognize these lines?" he asked, placing the remnants of my half-burned communication in her hands.

She started at sight of them. Evidently she had never expected to see them again.

"You recognize these lines?" he asked, smiling.

"You recognize it as such?"

"I do."

Her eyes lingered on the scrap and marked it as it was passed back and marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Moffat recalled her to the matter in hand.

"What did you do next, Miss Cumberland?"

"I answered the note."

"May I ask to what effect?"

"I refused Mr. Ranelagh's request. I said that I could not do what he asked and told him to wait till the next day, and he would see how I felt toward him and toward Adelaide. That was all I could not write much. I was suffering greatly."

"Suffering in mind or suffering in body?"

"Suffering in my mind. I was terrified, but that feeling did not last very long. Soon I grew happy, happier than I had been in weeks, happier than I had ever been in all my life before. I found that I loved Adelaide better than I did myself. This made everything easy, even the sending of the answer I have told you about to Mr. Ranelagh."

"Miss Cumberland, how did you get this answer to Mr. Ranelagh?"

"By means of a gentleman who was going away on the very train I had been asked to leave on. He was a guest next door, and I carried the note to him."

"Did you do this openly?"

"No; I'm afraid not. I slipped out by the side door in as careful a way as I could."

"Did this attempt at secrecy succeed? Were you able to go and come without meeting any one?"

"No. Adelaide was at the head of the stairs when I came back, standing there, very stiff and quiet."

"Did she speak to you?"

"No. She just looked at me. But it wasn't a common look. I shall never forget it."

"And what did you do then?"

"I went to my room."

"Miss Cumberland, did you see anybody else when you came in at this time?"

"Yes, our maid, Helen. She was just laying down a bunch of keys on the table in the lower hall. I stopped and looked at the keys. I had recognized them as the ones I had seen in Mr. Ranelagh's hands many times. He had gone, yet there were his keys. One of them unlocked the clubhouse. I noticed it among the others, but I didn't touch it then. Helen was still in the hall, and I ran straight upstairs, where I met my sister, as I have just told you."

"Miss Cumberland, continue the story. What did you do after re-entering your room?"

"I don't know what I did first. I was very excited—glad one minute, deeply wretched and very frightened the next. I must have sat down, for I was shaking very much and fell a little sick. The sight of that key had brought up pictures of the clubhouse, and I thought and thought how quiet it was and how far away and how cold it was, too, and how secret. I would go there for what I had to do there! And then I saw in my fancy one of its rooms, with the moon in it, and—but I soon shut my eyes to that. I heard Arthur moving about his room, and this made me start up and go out into the hall again."

"Arthur's room is near and Adelaide's far off, but I went to Adelaide's first. Her door was shut, and when I went to open it I found it locked. Calling her name, I said that I was tired and would be glad to say good night. She did not answer at once. When she did her voice was strange, though what she said was very simple—I was to please myself: she was going to retire too. And then she tried to say good night, but she only half said it, like one who is marked with tears or some other dread emotion. I cannot tell you how this made me feel, but you don't care for that. You want to know what I did—what Adelaide did. I will tell you, but I cannot hurry."

"Take your time, Miss Cumberland; we have no wish to hurry you."

"I can go on now. The next thing I did was to knock at Arthur's door. I heard him getting ready to go out, and I wanted to speak to him before he went. When he heard me open the door and let me in. He began at once on his grievances, but I could not listen to them. I wanted him to harness the gray mare for me and leave it standing in the stable. I explained the request by saying that it was necessary for me to see a certain friend of mine immediately and that no one would notice me in the cutter under the benskins. He didn't approve, but I persuaded him. I even persuaded him to wait till Zadok was gone, so that Adelaide would know nothing about it. He looked glum, but he promised.

"He was going away when I heard Adelaide's steps in the adjoining room. This frightened me. The partition is very thin between these two rooms, and I was afraid she had heard me tell Arthur for the gray mare and cutter. I could hear her rattling the bottles in the medicine cabinet hanging on this very wall. I hurried back to my own room, where I collected such little articles as I needed for the expedition before me.

"I had hardly done this when I heard the servants on the walk outside, then Arthur going down. The impulse to see and speak to him again was irresistible. I flew after him and caught him in the lower hall. 'Arthur,' I cried, 'look at me—look at me well—and then kiss me!' And he did kiss me. I'm glad when I think of it, though he did say next minute: 'What is the matter with you? What are you going to do—meet that villain?'

"I looked straight into his face. I waited till I saw I had his whole attention. Then I said as slowly and emphatically as I could: 'If you mean Elwood—not! I shall never meet him again, except in Adelaide's presence. He will not want to meet me. You may be at ease about that. Tomorrow all will be well and Adelaide very happy.'

"He shrugged his shoulders and reached for his coat and hat. As he was putting them on I said, 'Don't forget to harness up Jenny.' Jenny is the gray mare. 'And leave off the bells,' I urged. 'I don't want Adelaide to hear me go out.'

"He swung about at this. 'You and Adelaide are not very good friends, it seems.' 'As good as you and she are, I answered. Then I took my arms about him. 'Don't go down street to-night,' I prayed. 'Stay in the house for this one night. Stay in the house with Adelaide. Stay till I come home.' He stared, and I saw his color change. Then he flung me off, not rudely. 'Why don't you stay?' he asked. Then he laughed and added, 'I'll go harness the mare.'

"'The key's in the kitchen,' I said. 'I'll go get it for you. I heard Zadok bring it in.' He did not answer, and I went for the key. I found two on the nail, and I brought them both, but I only handed him one, the key to the stable door. 'While why are you going?' I asked as he looked at the key, then back toward the kitchen. 'The short way, of course.' 'Then here's the key to the Fulton grounds.'

"As he took the key I prayed again:

"Don't do what's in your mind, Arthur. Don't drink tonight." He

THE OLD RELIABLE BRECKINRIDGE BANK

Cloverport, Ky.

Organized 1872

OUR RECORD:

39 years of honorable dealing. Passed through three panics and paid every legitimate claim to its full amount on demand. Never sealed a check.

An absolutely Safe Place to do Business.

3 per cent on Time Deposits

EXAMINED APRIL 10-12 BY STATE BANK EXAMINER AND PRONOUNCED A No. 1

IRVINGTON

Miss Letetia Chapin And Mr. John Miles Married--Baptist Young People Entertain

The Irvington friends have received the announcement of the marriage of Miss Letetia Chapin to Mr. John Miles at the house of the bride's aunt in Indianapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Miles left immediately for a wedding trip after which they will return here, where they will live in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles will keep house in Irvington, where they expect to build a residence soon. Miss Annie Jenkins, a sister of the bride, will make her home with them.

Mrs. Miles will continue her millinery business for this season. She is a popular young woman in business as well as socially. Mr. Miles is well-known on the Henderson Route with which he holds a position.

Mrs. Charlie Beard and children, after spending several days with Mrs. Nora Board, have returned to Hardinsburg.

Miss Claire Jolly will leave to-day for Bloomington, Ind., to attend school.

Mrs. J. B. Herndon and son, Alford, have returned, after spending a month with relatives and friends in Hopkinsville, Clarksville and Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. L. B. Moremen will return this week, after a short visit to Miss Mattle Lee Moremen in Brandenburg.

Miss Jennie Calloway and daughter, Miss Virginia, who have been the guests of Rev. J. T. Lewis in Fordsville, have returned.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Malin have returned to Owensboro after visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Herdon.

Miss Wilson, of Caneyville, delivered a fine address at the Cumberland Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon on missions.

Miss Lizzie Hall was hostess at a 12 o'clock dinner Wednesday, given at her beautiful country home near Webster. Covers were laid for six.

Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Deweese spent several days of last week here, the guests of Mrs. Deweese's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tifford.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Neafus and children, were the weekend guests of relatives near Guston.

Rev. and Mrs. Chas. R. Shepherd left yesterday for Louisville after spending the summer here.

Mrs. Kate Henderson, of San Francisco, Cal., arrived last Friday to visit her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Bate Washington.

J. C. Payne and Dr. L. B. Moremen, have returned from New Harmony, Ind.

The Baptist Young Peoples Union gave a most delightful social on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McGlothlin.

Mrs. J. H. Miles

Takes pleasure in announcing the

OPENING

of her Fall and Winter

MILLINERY

at the store of

J. S. LOVE,

Irvington, Ky.

The Smartest
Hats

Correct Trimmings

PRICES REASONABLE
Mail Orders Solicited

ian, Monday evening. Games and music were indulged in after which light refreshments were served. The social committee was composed of the following: Misses Ellen Munford, Nellie Smith, Mabel McGlothian and Johanie Johnston.

Miss Katharine Wimp who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Bailey Waller in Hopkinsville for two weeks, returned home Saturday.

Mrs. J. D. Makin returned Saturday to her home in Evansville after a visit to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Newsom Gardner.

Miss Maybell Hawkins, of Stephensport, has been employed as the third teacher in our Public School of this city.

Miss Laura Hale invites you to her Millinery Opening September 25 at Rosenblatt's, Jolly's old stand.

A large line of pattern hats have been received from Indianapolis by Miss Laura Hale.

Miss Hale took particular pains to buy elegant Millinery at Indianapolis for her fall trade.

Before buying elsewhere, call to see the New Millinery Goods received by Miss Laura Hale.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

GUSTON.

Henry Warmouth, of Louisville, spent Sunday with his mother.

Rev. Miers, of Louisville, spent Saturday night at C. E. Anderson's.

Miss Ada Brown, of Brandenburg, spent Thursday with Miss Olive Adkison.

Miss Elizabeth Cox left last week to take charge of her school at Paynesville.

George Board moved last week to the Jno. Akers farm, near Irvington.

Miss Alice Carwin spent the week end with her parents at Brandenburg.

Mrs. Rebekah Bogard and little son, of Elton, Mo., are visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Frymire and Miss Clara Board were visitors at T. W. Anderson's Sunday.

Miss Olive Adkison, after a week's visit to her mother, returned to Frankfort Sunday to resume duties at the Fec's Mined Institution.

Dick Bennett and family, who have been residing at Columbus, Ind., for the past year, have returned to Kentucky to live.

Mrs. Oscar Rice had for her guests Sunday, Mrs. W. H. Bruner and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Bruner, of Ekon, and Mrs. Harrold, of Louisville.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

HARDINSBURG

Mrs. L. H. McCubbin and little daughter, of National City, Cal., who have been visiting relatives here several weeks, are spending this week in Stephensport.

The County Teacher's Institute will convene next week.

Supt. Driskell has mailed checks to the trustees for taking the census last spring.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Beard have returned from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Severs at Hinton, Va. They visited Washington before returning home.

If you want to save money in buying jewelry, call on T. C. Lewis, the old reliable jeweler.

Rev. Marion Dyer has returned from a successful series of meetings at Bewleyville. Next Sunday is his last service before going to conference.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Beard returned from Louisville Sunday.

Mrs. Lee Bishop is at home for a few days, after a visit to St. Louis and Louisville. She moves to Louisville this week. Mr. Bishop will remain a while to complete some work here, when he will join his family. These good people will be missed, both parents and children.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hall, Sept. 12, a girl.

Wm. Beard, the butcher, has been confined to his home several days.

G. D. Shellman has been ill for some time, and is yet unable to be at his store.

Mrs. J. M. Williams and little daughter, Loraine, are here from Louisville, visiting her husband, who is employed by Mercer & Mercer as stenographer.

Miss Lashbrook, of Owensboro, and Miss Hillsman of Livermore, after a pleasant visit to Miss Hannah Beard, have returned to their homes.

Hardinsburg and vicinity were well represented at the State fair last week.

Miss Jessie Cummings, one of our High School students, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home at Falls of Rough.

The High School boys are organizing a foot-ball team.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hardin, were visiting relatives at Custer Saturday.

Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use Lewisport BEST Flour. Sold by J. H. Gardner.

THROW OUT THE LINE

Give The Kidneys Help And Many People Will Be Happy.

"Throw Out The Life Line"—

The kidneys need help.

They're overworked—can't get the poison filtered out of the blood.

They're getting worse every minute.

Will you help them?

Doan's Kidney Pills have brought thousands of kidney sufferers back from the verge of despair.

Read this case:

Mrs. Lotus Hoover, Eighth St., Campbell, Ind., says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills for I have taken them with success and other members of my family have also profited through their use. My kidneys were disordered for a long time before I knew exactly what ailed me. My limbs were stiff and sore and I had sharp pains across the small of my back. I also suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended by local people who had taken them, I was finally led to begin their use. The contents of three boxes completely cured me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

GIVES UP PORT ARTHUR.

Japan Moves to Chihai Bay on Korean Coast For a Gibraltar.

Purely strategical reasons have induced the Japanese government to decide upon the abandonment of a naval station at Port Arthur, in Manchuria, representing an investment of many millions of dollars. This station was built by the Russians when they were in control of the Liaotung peninsula under a nominal lease from China.

Even after it was shown to fail of that degree of impregnability which was the expectation of its founders and fell into the hands of the Japanese as an incident of the Russo-Japanese war, the victors did not hesitate to spread another great sum of money upon the defenses.

But the acquisition of Korea by Japan has made the Port Arthur station secondary in importance from a naval point of view. It was too far inland to be of any use in the defense of Korea, so the decision has been reached to abandon the place as a naval station and to transfer as much of the material as can be used elsewhere to the new site selected at Chihai bay, on the coast of Korea, a position that will command the entrance to the Yellow sea and the great gulf of Pechili, as well as afford a measure of protection to the western coast of Japan and the strait of Korea.

Great docks will be constructed at this place, which will be reserved exclusively for naval purposes. The port will be closed to commerce, while Port Arthur will be released for the use of the merchant marine.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

TO KILL FRUIT PESTS.

Electric Shocks Instead of Sprays Used in Washington.

Electricity as an agency to destroy the codling moth and other bug pests is the latest innovation introduced in modern apple orcharding in the Spokane valley, Washington, where was recently made what is declared to have been the first demonstration of its kind in the world. The test was made in a six-year-old orchard, and more than a score of second brood moths and many green aphides were killed in few minutes.

The apparatus consists of a storage battery to charge the incandescent light globes, each of six candle power, which are netted with fine steel wire, coated with copper and tin, alternately. Attracted by the bright lights in the trees to which the globes are carried at the ends of a covered wire, the moths fly against the netting, complete the electric circuit and are killed.

It is estimated that one battery to an acre of trees will keep the moths under control, thus eliminating the usual spraying and saving many dollars annually for help and equipment.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

One Wheeled Jinrikisha.

A one wheeled jinrikisha on the monocyde principle is being introduced among the Chinese of the Malacca states. It is said to be safe and to have many advantages over the old fashioned vehicle.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.

MAINE AND

PROHIBITION

"Dry" Law Has Prevailed For Sixty Years.

HISTORY OF LEGISLATION.

Brigadier General Dow Was Father of the Movement—Agitation For Repeal Was Started Because of Wholesale Violations of Statute.

Prohibition in Maine is sixty years old. The recent election, in which the "wets" appear to have won, although there will be a contest in the courts, was the first time in twenty-seven years that her citizens were called on to vote on the subject. Brigadier General Neal Dow was the father of the movement. It was he who in 1851 drafted the first severely prohibitory law of the state. He was in the forefront of the fight over all succeeding prohibition laws, which culminated in the constitutional amendment of 1881, repeal of which has just been voted on.

That amendment came up for consideration after Maine had tried state wide statutory prohibition for over a quarter of a century. It was proposed by the Sixty-first legislature and submitted to a test vote on Sept. 8, 1884. It was overwhelmingly approved, 70,733 persons voting for it and only 23,811 against it. Governor Roble issued a proclamation in regard to it on the following Dec. 3, and the amendment actually went into effect in January, 1885. It prohibited the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, not including cider, but legalized the sale of liquors for medicinal and mechanical purposes and for the arts. The article in full reads:

The manufacture of intoxicating liquors, not including cider, and the sale and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors are and shall be forever prohibited, except, however, that the sale and keeping for sale of such liquors for medicinal purposes and the arts and the sale and keeping for sale of elder may be permitted under such regulations as the legislature may provide.

The legislature shall enact laws with suitable penalties for the suppression of the manufacture, sale and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors, with the exceptions herein specified.

This clause of the constitution was unenacted for twenty years. In 1904 Governor Cobb attempted strict enforcement of the prohibition law. When he ran for re-election his plurality shrank from 27,000 to 7,000. With the swing of the tide of the state this year from the Republican to the Democratic column state leaders figured that perhaps a majority of the voters were not in favor of "no license."

The history of prohibition in Maine is declared to have been marked by wide violations of the law. Secret bars are said to have flourished everywhere. The mail order liquor dealers are said to have smuggled liquor into the state by railroads, while moonshine distilleries flourished.

Finally the legislature enacted the Sturgis law, authorizing Governor Cobb to appoint a commission to search homes for forbidden beverages. The legislature repealed the Sturgis law in 1906, but Governor Cobb vetoed the repeal. Then arose the movement for a re-enactment of the constitution.

The campaign just closed was hard fought on both sides and attracted the attention of temperance workers all over the world. Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and herself a Portland woman, took charge of the fight for the prohibition element. Campaigners were enlisted from all over the country. The International Prohibition association conducted interviews with prominent men and women gathered all over the world. The National Temperance society, the Anti-saloon league and the Good Templars also were active.

The campaign just closed was hard fought on both sides and attracted the attention of temperance workers all over the world. Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and herself a Portland woman, took charge of the fight for the prohibition element. Campaigners were enlisted from all over the country. The International Prohibition association conducted interviews with prominent men and women gathered all over the world. The National Temperance society, the Anti-saloon league and the Good Templars also were active.

Electricity as an agency to destroy the codling moth and other bug pests is the latest innovation introduced in modern apple orcharding in the Spokane valley, Washington, where was recently made what is declared to have been the first demonstration of its kind in the world. The test was made in a six-year-old orchard, and more than a score of second brood moths and many green aphides were killed in few minutes.

The apparatus consists of a storage battery to charge the incandescent light globes, each of six candle power, which are netted with fine steel wire, coated with copper and tin, alternately. Attracted by the bright lights in the trees to which the globes are carried at the ends of a covered wire, the moths fly against the netting, complete the electric circuit and are killed.

It is estimated that one battery to an acre of trees will keep the moths under control, thus eliminating the usual spraying and saving many dollars annually for help and equipment.

Bread baking is guaranteed a success if you use Lewisport BEST Flour.